CARIBBEAN HURRICANES LEAVE 400 DEAD IN TAKE

Lottery Ticket Sale Charged On Fair Drawing

Prosecution of Seller Started In Police Court

Believed Attempt to Upset Legality of Prize Distribution Made in Connection With Fair at Willows; W. Mitchell Is Charged as Seller; Case Remanded for One Week for Hearing; Drawing Claimed to Have Official Sanction

The first step in what is believed to be an attempt to upset the legality of the distribution of prizes in connection with the provincial fair at the Willows recently was taken in City Police Court this morning when William Mitchell was charged under the Criminal Code with "selling a certain ticket for use in disposing of property by tickets."

Mr. Mitchell was one of those employed to sell admission tickets to the fair on the streets of the city.

PRIVATE PROSECUTION

The prosecution was launched privately by Clarence Harris, whose name appears on the information, and if upheld by the court, will cast the cloak of illegality on the whole drawing, on which distribution of a minimum of $14,000 in prizes was guaranteed. R. C. Lowe is counsel for Mr. Harris.

Mr. Mitchell made only a brief court appearance, being granted a remand for one week to secure counsel and consider his position.

In view of the fact that the distribution was stated to have official sanction, the case will be watched with considerable interest here. Some months ago when sale of the tickets began the Victoria Police Commission was informed that the drawing had legal approval of the Attorney-General's department.

Another indication that the legality of the drawing is questioned was given in Supreme Court yesterday when suit was filed under the "infamous clause" by Alexander Lowe, claiming the car won by Miss Annie Lorne in the distribution.

EXEMPTIONS

The prosecution against Mr. Mitchell is laid under section 236 of the Criminal Code, which sets out the penalties against those who sell tickets and similar drawings. The section provides an exemption for fairs and agricultural shows in certain respects and with this view, it is understood, the drawing for the Willows fair was held. The prosecutors in the present instance claim that exempting clause does not apply to the lottery case.

Further interest is added to the case by the fact that other fairs and shows have commenced sale of tickets for similar drawings. Should a conviction be recorded these other prize distributions would be stamped as illegal, it is understood.

FILM EXPLOSION KILLS TWO AND HURTS FOURTEEN

Wall of Kodak Co. Building at Rochester Is Blown Out

Rochester, N.Y., Sept. 11.—An explosion today ripped out the west wall of the four-story roll-coating building at the centre of the Kodak Park plant of the Eastman Kodak Company, killing two workmen and injuring fourteen, some perhaps fatally.

Eight hundred workers in the building were marched to safety.

Some of the injured were reported in critical condition from acid burns and hurts caused by falling stonework.

Only one reporter succeeded in entering the closely guarded plant. He was ejected within half an hour when his identity was revealed.

The explosion was believed to have occurred in a machine shed for mixing a highly explosive coating which was applied in the building to roll film.

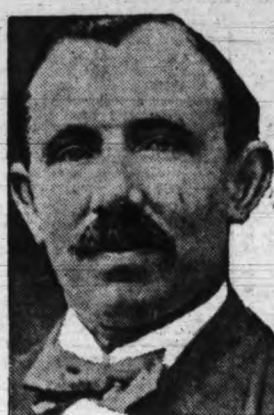

The shock of the blast was felt over wide radius.

Desenzano, Italy, Sept. 11.—Lieut. Meri of the Italian team which was to have competed to-morrow in the Schneider Cup races, to-day was officially clocked at 635 kilometres an hour (about 397 miles).

The mark was said to be a new world speed record for planes.

The Schneider Cup record, set in 1929 by Waghorn of the British team, is 328.63 miles an hour. After that race Squadron-Leader A. H. Orifbar, British pilot, flew at 357 miles an hour over a three-kilometre course.

BRITAIN SELLS R-100 UNDER ECONOMY PLAN

MacDonald Tells Commons Getting Rid of Big Dirigible Will Save $22,500,000

National Economy Bill Debate Brings Sharp Exchanges in House

London, Sept. 11.—Great Britain's active airship programme will be abandoned in the interest of national economy, Premier MacDonald told the Commons to-day.

The dirigible R-101, sister ship of the lost R-101, will be disposed of to help effect a saving of $22,500,000 in the national defence programme.

The Cardington airship station will be placed on a basis of "care and maintenance." Masts and other paraphernalia which have been built in various parts of the world to facilitate airship flights will be reduced to the same status. A staff will be maintained only to watch over the properties.

Thus the government's reduced plans will cost only $100,000, saving $550,000 annually.

EXCHANGES IN DEBATE

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Sept. 11.—The Commons resumed its task to-day, on edge. From either side angry indignation and interjections were showered in turn on Premier MacDonald and Rt. Hon. J. R. Clynes, former Home Secretary, who is temporarily leading the Labor opposition.

Premier MacDonald engaged in a warm dispute across the table with two of his former ministers as to whether the late government had or had not considered taxes on tea and sugar and a reduction in teachers' salaries.

OUTSIDE SETTLEMENT SUGGESTED

As Mr. Clynes was speaking two Labour members of the Commons warmly interrupted him, benches then the Speaker, to the amusement of the House, suggested they had better settle their differences outside.

Dick Chester Pilots Car For King of Siam

Chauffeur who drove Prince of Wales about city on his last visit serving Siamese royalty in similar capacity; White brought king's new Pierce-Arrow to Coast.

Driving royalty has become more or less of a habit with Dick Chester, well-known local chauffeur, and it was only natural that he should be selected from the Gray Line staff to pilot the private car of the King of Siam during his stay in the city.

White was at the wheel of the big Pierce-Arrow sedan which brought the Siamese party here yesterday afternoon from Up-Island. He will continue to drive the royal sedan for the balance of the week. The car will be at the call of the royal pair at any hour of the day.

Dick Chester drove the Prince of Wales's car when the heir to the British throne was in Victoria on his last visit. Before his departure the prince presented Dick with a jeweled pin which he prized highly. He had the misfortune to lose it recently.

The car which is being used by the Siamese king for his personal use while here was formerly owned by the Hon. R. Randolph Bruce during his term as Lieutenant-Governor of the province.

Another noted chauffeur attached to the royal party is Ted White, of the Brewster Transportation Company, who was assigned to drive the Siamese party over the mountain roads while staying at the Banff Springs Hotel.

White is a powerful looking fellow, over six feet, and his uniform gives the impression of a ranking officer in the air force. The king was particularly taken with his driving, and it is said that he would like him to go to Bangkok if he would care to accept the post of royal chauffeur.

In the United States the king purchased a palatial - appointed Pierce-Arrow to take back home, and this car was brought to the Island by White. It will be shipped aboard the Ss. Empress of Canada on Saturday for delivery at Bangkok.

Nanaimo School Board Finds Its Appointments Subject to Political Action

Trustee Planta Says Conservative Association Interfered in Selection of School Nurse

Special to The Times

Nanaimo, Sept. 11.—A stormy meeting was held by the School Board yesterday evening with charges of politics hurled and denied. The trouble arose out of appointment of a school nurse in place of Miss McDermott, resigned.

Trustees Mrs. T. A. Barnard and J. Green had been appointed a committee to communicate with Dr. H. E. Young and submit a selection of candidates for appointment. The names offered were Miss Carruthers, an outsider, and Mrs. Kelly, a local woman. Dr. Young then recommended the appointment of Miss Carruthers.

In the meantime the following telegram was sent to Dr. Young by five members of the School Board without first obtaining authority.

Nanaimo board protests appointment of school nurse, and requests cancellation in favor of Mrs. Kelly, a local graduate. Kindly act in the matter immediately.

Alderman Bennett had telephoned Dr. Young in vigorous language about the appointment, and Dr. Young had informed him his department had never dictated to boards, and neither would he brook interference from others.

Alderman Bennett is president of the local Conservative Association, and is not a member of the School Board.

Mrs. Barnard stated politics had crept in, and Trustee Green stated no political party would dictate his line.

No Money to Pay Teachers Of Chicago

Associated Press

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Loyal to the ideal that "school must go on," 18,000 public school teachers, janitors and office workers, many of whom have not been paid since April, came to the end of the first week of the new school year to-day drooping their heads.

"When, oh, when will our next pay day be?"

And to those who have been stalling the baker, the butcher and the landlord, Secretary Charles E. Gilbert of the school board wearily said:

"I don't know. Nobody does. But unless something is done—taxes paid, a special session of the state legislature, or something—it might be two years."

R. W. Mayhew Says Chamber Cannot Consider Road Projects of Unknown Cost

Port Alberni, Sept. 11.—Vigorous protests against diversion of the Transcanada Highway southward from Nanaimo to Victoria, instead of westward to Alberni and Tofino, as originally promised, were voiced by all west coast speakers at a banquet in the Somers Hotel, which was yesterday evening jointly tendered by the Port Alberni, Alberni and Tofino Boards of Trade to the Victoria Chamber of Commerce "Caravan of Goodwill."

C.A. MacNaughton, vice-president of the Port Alberni Board, acted as toastmaster for the local part of the programme, while R. W. Mayhew, president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, performed a similar service for the visitors. P. M. McGregor of Victoria and D. Galliford of Alberni, were song leaders.

Eight United States Catholic priests were said to have been killed and one was reported missing.

BLEW FOR AN HOUR

The message said the storm struck the capital city at 2:30 p.m. yesterday and continued until 3:30 p.m. A maximum wind of 110 miles an hour marked the hurricane.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT

London, Sept. 11.—The Governor of British Honduras informed the Colonial Office by cable to-day that at the time of sending his message this morning fifty persons in Belize were known to have been killed when a tropical storm struck the city yesterday and that he feared the total number of deaths would be larger.

The estimated property damage thus far, the Governor reported, was $1,000,000.

CROPS DAMAGED

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Sept. 11.—A tropical storm of moderate intensity caused widespread damage to the crops in the Dominican Republic to-day. Some buildings also were damaged.

Two deaths

Washington, Sept. 11.—Two hurricanes were sweeping the Caribbean to-day.

One was reported to have killed 150 to 200 at Belize, British Honduras, yesterday evening, and to-day managed the southern part of the Gulf of Mexico.

The other killed at least one at San Juan, Porto Rico, and to-day was sweeping toward Haiti.

Shortly before noon various weather bureaus predicted the storm would pass near Santo Domingo late this afternoon or early to-morrow.

Government radio facilities at Belize, the capital of British Honduras, were put out of order by the storm.

A second message received by the city, a place of 13,000 population, was destroyed, 150 dead and half the population homeless. Another message to the Pan-American Airways from Belize said Belize field manager fixed the dead at 200. Several priests from the United States are believed among those killed at Belize.

The Red Cross at Washington was advised by the manager of the Port Alberni chapter that the hurricane passing over San Juan killed one, injured several, and destroyed 200 houses and damaged numerous business buildings.

San Juan was cut off from communication with the rest of the island.

A second message received by the Pan-American Airways from Belize said that in addition to the dead, several hundred were injured, half the houses were demolished and that all radio towers were down.

London, Sept. 11.—Lady Astor, Conservative M.P. for Plymouth, and Mrs. Leah Manning, a Labor member, created a minor sensation as the Commons adjourned to-day by engaging in an altercation which grew out of Lady Astor's remarks during the sitting.

Mrs. Manning took Lady Astor to task and the latter came back with all her verbal batteries. The other members cheered and jeered, but when it appeared there might be a closer encounter the two women were steered out by their friends.

CHAMBER CARAVAN LEARNS ALBERNI VIEWS ON ROADS

E. J. Cronk, president of the Port Alberni Board of Trade, introduced the question of the road. He pointed out to the visitors that it was to their interest, as well as to that of the Alberni, to support the building of the road, which had been promised ever since 1912, when Alberni had been officially designated the terminus of the Canadian Highway, at ceremonies at which government representatives had been present, as well as J. C. Beckwith when he was mayor of Victoria and other officials.

Copies of The Victoria Times, as far back as twenty years ago, were shown to the guests to demonstrate that even then it had been promised that the road would run west to the Pacific Ocean through Alberni.

Mr. Cronk quoted campaign promises by the leaders of the present government, which definitely promised Long Beach as the terminus of the Transcanada Highway. He said that These showed the leaders of the government to have been committed to the building of this road.

As a business proposition he urged that it be proceeded with at once. The advertising value of such a road was greater to Alberni than to Victoria. The road had been promised and would have to be built sometime, and if built as a part of the highway the federal government would contribute half of the cost, which would only total $500,000 altogether.

CASE FOR SMALL CENTRES

L. A. Hanna, M.P.P., speaking for Alberni, urged upon the Victoria delegation that they consider the interests of the province as a whole. What was good for Alberni and Nanaimo was good for Victoria. These centres held at least 25,000 potential tourists and steady customers for the Alberni. As a lumbering and fishing centre was an economic asset to the province as a whole and to Victoria. Mr. Hanna asserted the smaller centres of the province were entitled to more consideration than the others. It would be to Victoria's own interests that it should, if necessary, do without such luxuries as new courthouses in order that the other centres might get assistance with their necessities. He believed the beautification of Victoria might be subordinated temporarily to improving access to the tourist centres of the Island, such as Sproat Lake.

Rev. J. W. Leighton of the West Coast Mission spoke briefly for Tofino. He pointed out that Tofino was a present practically isolated from other centres, such as Victoria. In winter it got three mails a month. To travel twenty-six miles from Tofino involved not only great hardship and loss of time but also considerable expense. The present difficulty of communication involved certain danger to life, in cases of sickness and accident where it was imperative the patient be moved to a hospital. The building of the Tofino-Sproat Lake road would not only alleviate this condition but also help build up a profitable business and tourist traffic with Tofino and the Clayoquot district.

Dr. MacNaughton of Comox presented greetings from the provincial government and added a personal appeal to the speakers for the road.

VICTORIA'S ATTITUDE

Mr. Mayhew stressed the advantages of beautifying Victoria. He did not support the road, but neither did he oppose it. He said it was not the policy of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce to support projects for which the expenditure was unattractive. This evening was the first time he had heard any definite figure quoted.

David Leeming, chairman of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau, spoke on the work of the bureau. He cited accomplishments such as the success of the Victoria ferry service, estimated the financial gain to Canada from tourists at $278,000,000 a year, but stated that the business was highly competitive and good roads and other inducements had to be offered visitors.

SUGGESTS EXCHANGE

A. W. Neill, M.P., pointed out the absolute necessity of the road, and asked for Victoria support. He intimated that he felt it might even be to Alberni's interest to waive its claim to the National Park at Long Beach, and support Victoria's claim for a park south of the canal and construction of the so-called West Coast or Ocean Highway, as a quid pro quo for Victoria's support of the Tofino Road. He hoped the Victoria would be sportsmanlike enough to see the larger viewpoint, which remark Mr. Mayhew objected to as a slur on Victoria's sportsmanship.

To-day the delegates had breakfast at Cameron Lake, en route to the Comox district and Campbell River. Yesterday afternoon was spent at Sproat Lake.

GRAIN GROWERS GIVE DIVIDEND

Canadian Press

Winnipeg, Sept. 11.—A dividend of 5 per cent has been declared by the United Grain Growers Ltd. R. S. Law, president of the organization, announced at the conclusion of a meeting of the board of directors to-day. This is for the financial year ending July 31, and cheques will be mailed to 30,000 shareholders shortly.

Accounts are still in auditor's hands, but it is understood the balance sheet will show a strong liquid position, and that earnings for the year, on bond interest and depreciation have been deducted, are sufficient to justify payment of the dividend.

While reduction in grain-handling during the current crop is considered inevitable owing to the small crop, the president declared the company's 400 grain elevators are well located with respect to those districts having fair to good crops. The company also has several elevators at Port Arthur and Vancouver.

During the last fiscal year the company re-entered the business of exporting grain, which had been temporarily discontinued.

Few Chinese Now In Business In Sonora, Mexico

Mexico City, Sept. 11.—Dispatches from Hermosillo said the Nationalist committee in charge of the state anti-Chinese campaign had declared the campaign suspended. The committee had received reports that almost all the Chinese in the state of Sonora had abandoned their businesses, leaving Mexican merchants free of what was called ruinous competition.

BRITISH-SEE INCOME TAX SHARPLY RAISED

London, Sept. 11.—Rt. Hon. Philip Snowden's emergency taxation measures, expected to provide $200,000,000 in additional revenue went into force to-day as the British people from May-fair to Limehouse tightened their belts for the sake of national solvency. Cabinet members, school teachers, policemen and other government employees and the unemployed faced with resignation the prospect that their remuneration would be sited on October 1 to effect a savings in administrative expenses of $350,100,000. The defence services, education and the road fund will contribute to this figure.

"Anyhow, let's have a pint before the price goes up." This remark by a member of the Commons at the conclusion of Mr. Snowden's speech yesterday typifies the resignation with which the country has received the stingy imposts.

INCOME TAX

Conservatives notably have been taken aback by the income tax burdens. As an example of how they work, a married man with two children, earning $2,500 a year, will pay $300 compared with $40 previously.

The Labour party betokens implacable opposition to the budget proposals at every stage of their legislative progress. The London Daily Herald, how, in the editorial organ, bitterly attacks what it terms the inequality of sacrifice and angrily says that instead of following the course indicated by his life work, Mr. Snowden has been struck by the pressure of Tories and Liberals and bankers.

MAN ESCAPES FIRE, BUT DIES OF INJURIES

F. J. Thebodeau, One of Victims of Lytton Blaze, Succumbs in Kamloops

Canadian Press

Vancouver, Sept. 11.—F. J. Thebodeau, Vancouver, died in the hospital at Kamloops early this morning from injuries suffered in the fire which destroyed the Lytton Hotel in Lytton, 155 miles northeast of Vancouver, early yesterday.

Four other men are in hospitals as a result of the fire which swept the hotel and business district of the picturesque town with a loss of $100,000. One at least is in a serious condition.

JUMPED FROM WINDOW
Thebodeau was one of the hotel guests who leaped from the second story to escape the flames. He suffered severe burns, shock and a broken ankle, and was removed to Kamloops aboard a special train.

Thebodeau leaves a widow and four young children. He had been out of work for months, and had only recently secured employment selling Christmas cards on commission. On the day of the fire Thebodeau received a letter from his wife, enclosing one dollar he had earned. It was the family's only money and Mrs. Thebodeau could not pay for a telegram to Kamloops to inquire to her husband's condition.

The tidal wave, the messages said, reached the height of from five to nine feet in the city.

The governor requested London by radio to rush a battleship to assist the stricken city.

COMMUNICATION RESTORED
Miami, Fla., Sept. 11.—R. I. Duntan, general operations manager for Pan-American Airways here, announced today receipt of unofficial information from Belize, British Honduras, that 200 persons were killed when a tropical storm swept over the city yesterday.

Duntan said the Pan-American Airways to-day restored radio communication with its Belize station after being cut off since 1:30 p.m. yesterday.

The message, received from the field manager at Belize, said: "Belize devastated by hurricane. All Pan-American personnel safe, but 200 dead in town."

Belize is the capital of British Honduras, with a population of approximately 15,000.

SUPPLIES BY PLANE
The pilot of a Pan-American plane at San Salvador was ordered to pick up all available medical and other supplies and carry them to Belize. The plane was due at Belize at noon.

The regular Pan-American plane through Belize outran the storm, Duntan said.

100 MILES AN HOUR
By Harwood Hall, Associated Press Correspondent
San Juan, Porto Rico, Sept. 11.—San Juan was struck by a hurricane yesterday evening which paralyzed telephone and utility facilities, and swept the island with a wind that averaged 100 miles an hour.

Two persons were reported injured on sailing vessels in San Juan Harbor. The steamer Cerrito was grounded when swept into a reef by the heavy wind.

The message said a wind of hurricane proportions had destroyed St. John's College and numerous other buildings. The disturbance continued northward at a velocity estimated at 150 miles an hour.

Guatemala City was preparing to-day to send relief at once to Belize, where many Guatemalans reside.

Mr. MacDonald was moving second reading of the National Economy Bill, which authorizes the government to wield the axe by means of orders-in-council, or in other words enables the government to take whatever action it deems desirable without authority of Parliament. When issued the orders will have the effect of effects of Parliament and can only be changed by an act of Parliament.

SPEED DECLARED NEEDED
The Prime Minister explained the purpose was to avoid the necessity of bringing down separate bills for each out-of-expenditure. Speed was essential. The usual procedure by way of parliamentary bills would require six months. He described the bill as an emergency measure.

It was not enough, the Prime Minister stressed, merely to balance the budget. A good deal had still to be done "before we get right down to the foundation." The financial situation had to be made good. Credits had to be stopped. "I should never have proposed the bill," Mr. MacDonald exclaimed, "or dreamed of proposing it unless I had been driven to it by the national necessity."

LABOR AMENDMENT
Mr. Clynes moved a Labor amendment providing "that while recognizing the necessity of preserving the country's finances on a sound basis, this House cannot acquiesce in proposals which will deprive the masses of the people of necessities of life while others remain in enjoyment of luxuries and will aggravate unemployment by restricting the purchasing power of wage earners, nor can this House approve secondary control of a bill abrogating parliamentary control by authorizing the making of orders-in-council designed to supersede existing acts of Parliament or to reverse the settled national policy without the previous specific assent of the House of Commons."

During his speech Mr. MacDonald warmly rejected the intimation he was no longer a Labor man. This brought forth cheers from the Labor opposition.

"You may take the label from my back, but you cannot take the label from my mind," the Prime Minister retorted.

The Prime Minister claims he speaks as a Labor man," said Mr. Clynes. "I deny that in anything he has said. He has spoken for the Labor Party."

Barthling all the way, Mr. Thomas defiantly flung back the opposition challenge. Taking item after item in the government's "axe" proposals, he declared that before resignation, the one Labor proposal had provisionally agreed to identical cuts to the extent of $280,000,000. Cuts in the Economy Bill were not a penny different from those which would have been made had Labor remained in office—in teachers' salaries, policemen's pay, civil service salaries, health and agricultural matters, the empire marketing board and the colonial development fund.

On unemployment insurance, the Labor cabinet's plan had been to reduce the period of ordinary benefit from fifty-two to twenty-six weeks and subject the payment of the transitional benefit—the benefits that are not covered by receipts—to a test.

Mr. Hon. George Lansbury, who was first Commissioner of Works in the old cabinet, broke in. He demanded to know whether the Prime Minister would also allow him to give an account of what had gone on in the Labor cabinet.

"I challenge the accuracy of the figures," Mr. Lansbury declared amid general uproar. He wanted the right to produce the cabinet minutes.

The right honorable gentleman knows what I say is perfectly true," Mr. Thomas retorted. "These figures were, by instructions of the cabinet, conveyed to the representatives of the two other parties as the figures on which we were agreed."

"No no," came shouts from the opposition front bench.

Mr. Clynes described the Economy Bill as a measure to suppress the opposition, to silence the minority, to make a mockery of parliamentary government. He conjured up the possibility of a subsequent Socialist government taking the order-in-council method as a precedent.

"How much easier it would be to nationalize mines or land by order-in-council," Mr. Clynes declared. He claimed that under the economy cuts 14,000 teachers would not be getting a "teacher's wages."

"We offered our resignations as the price of freedom," Mr. Clynes concluded.

MOSELEY AMENDMENT
Sir Oswald Moseley, wealthy young Socialist, who leads the very small New Party, has a further amendment to reject the bill on the ground that by reducing the standard of living it reduces the home market, on which industry depends.

The Moseley amendment further urges scientific protection of the home market.

London, Sept. 11.—Premier MacDonald, opening the debate on the government's drastic Economy Bill in the House of Commons to-day, said that the bill was a necessary measure as essential for speedy solution of the financial crisis.

Mr. MacDonald promised the power to issue orders-in-council would last only one month. He said the crisis temporarily had subsided, but the nation's position must be entrenched before every measure that had been taken could be thrown to the winds.

The financial position of the country must be sound as well as the budget balanced, he declared, and his duty in applying the national economy resolutions was no less difficult and unpleasant than Chancellor Snowden's.

Mr. Snowden, showing no ill effects from his exertions, sat up in bed to-day with a telephone on one side and a typewriter on the other, and a file of letters on the other which contained money from people of all classes anxious to contribute to the national coffers.

THOMAS IN ARGUMENT
By George Hamblenton, Canadian Press Staff Writer
London, Sept. 11.—Document in hand, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions and Colonies, stood by the table in the Commons this afternoon and endeavored to make himself heard above the din of angrily protesting Labor members.

The temper of the house had risen rapidly during the day's debate on the Economy Bill. The advent of Mr. Thomas, who renounced the Labor Party and also the general secretaryship of the National Union of Railwaymen, in order to remain with Premier MacDonald in the National Government, was the signal for a rapid crowding of the benches. It heralded the one Labor proposal had provisionally agreed to identical cuts to the extent of $280,000,000. Cuts in the Economy Bill were not a penny different from those which would have been made had Labor remained in office—in teachers' salaries, policemen's pay, civil service

GOVERNMENT AND PUBLIC

GOVERNMENTAL DEFICIENCY Always meets with stern public disapproval in times of economic recession. In times of economic inflation it meets with public toleration, if not actual encouragement. The only criticism it receives when the public is so busy trying to get rich that it pays little or no attention to policies and administration, is from the government's political opponents, and that often is taken by the public as a mere matter of course.

The grim fact is that governments are less responsible for economic relapses or collapses than the non-governmental elements, although they always are expected to lead the world back to universal prosperity. The orgy of speculation which preceded the present deflation was a purely public affair. The public wanted it, demanded it, insisted upon having it, and when, finally, governments sought to check it they were threatened with summary damnation. Nor can governments be held responsible for that other star performer, stock watering, by which legitimate business was capitalized for many times the actual money invested in it and the public, willingly enough, held the bag. It is true that governments might try to prevent this form of public exploitation, but not when the "going is good," for then the exploiters and exploiter would join together in a violent surge of indignation at governmental "interference with business."

Canada presents a number of fleeing exhibits of this kind, and every one of them ought to be investigated, with a view to the adoption of legislation as will make this form of so-called "big business" unpopular in the future. Legislation of this nature never would stand a chance in Parliament or legislatures when economic conditions are more favorable, and now, therefore, is the time to put it into force. Indeed, now is the time for governments—as well as individuals—to do many elementary sane and sound things which everybody needs, but which scarcely anybody wants when times are good. This, figuratively, should be the world's castor-oil season.

WHAT A BILL!

WHEN YOU COME TO THINK OF IT, a thousand million dollars is a large sum. And, as The Literary Digest suggests, this is only a part of the cost of crime to the decent citizens of the United States! An aggregate of more than $1,119,000,000, based on the fiscal year 1929-30, is admittedly incomplete. From this point the Wickersham Commission throws up its hands at the Herculean and apparently impossible task of estimating the nation's "crime bill" in dollars and cents.

Yet here is what we read:

Crime in the modern manner—racketeering, fraud, swindling, organized extortion, bootlegging and blackmail—constitutes so great a drain on the resources of the country that the commission recommends a special investigation of "modernized" law-breaking.

In addition to the eleven members of the Wickersham Commission, two experts—Goldthwaite H. Dorr and Sidney P. Simpson—aided in the task of estimating the "tremendous economic burden imposed by crime upon the community." But commission and experts were forced to admit that no figures are available to estimate the high cost of racketeering to the country at large.

In a separate report this is what we find:

"No one can say how many 'rackets' are being operated to-day in New York or in Chicago or in St. Louis, much less compute the loss to the ultimate consumer resulting therefrom. No more can anyone say how many fraudulent bankruptcies, insurance frauds, or other fraudulent schemes are perpetrated in the United States annually, much less estimate the amount of loss to the victims of those schemes. But this should not blind us to the tremendous economic importance of these forms of criminal acts. We can recognize the immensity of loss due to these forms of crime even if we cannot measure it."

The Wickersham Commission obviously estimates that in the average American city, the enforcement of the law in criminal cases levies an average cost of $5.47 upon every man, woman and child—a striking commentary on our so-called civilization.

Then we are told to consider this bill as it applies to our neighbor's business of law enforcement:

Federal criminal law administration	$52,786,000
State police	2,690,000
State penal and correctional institutions	51,730,000
Criminal law administration in 300 cities	247,700,000
Private industrial police in Pennsylvania	1,360,000
Private protective service in large cities	10,000,000
Private watchmen	189,000,000
Armored-car service	3,900,000
Private correctional treatment of criminals	850,000
Insured losses due to crime	47,000,000
Mail frauds	68,000,000
Insurance against crime	106,000,000
Safes, chests, vaults	4,237,000
Burglary of banks	311,000
Known incendiarism	2,000,000
Burglary of banks	1,800,000
Thefts from jewelers	3,000,000
Roadside freight thefts	1,100,000
Forgery	40,000,000
Indirect cost through loss of productive labor	322,000,000
Total	$1,124,314,000

It is a formidable total; but it is the business of our neighbor, not ours. At the same time, it is a problem which demands the application of mature judgment.

GEORGE IS BACK AGAIN

ONCE AGAIN GEORGE YOUNG is basking in the favor of the Toronto public. Once more he beams upon us from the front pages of the Toronto newspapers, his testimonials to tonics of various kinds are to be found in the display advertising, while we are again regaled with recitals of the joys and sorrows, the hopes and fears, the aspirations of not only George but George's relatives and George's friends.

Yet, but a few short weeks ago there was scarcely anybody in Toronto so poor to do George reverence. Scarcely anybody believed that he would do any better in the Canadian National Exhibition long-distance swim this year than he had done in the same event last year and the year before when he was ignominiously taken from the water long before the end of the course was reached. Toronto, in fact, had lost faith in George—and Toronto's faith in most things is a frail thing at best, except on Toryism and the Sabbath—and did not think he could beat his way back to the marathon swimming supremacy he established when, without Toronto's backing, he won the big Wrigley Catalina Island swim in California four years ago. But this is precisely what George did—and now he is again Toronto's "white-haired boy," and a wiser white-haired boy than he was before, especially in his knowledge of a fickle public.

George knows now that unless he continues to be a champion long-distance swimmer his name will not appear in patent medicine advertisements more than a few months, that just as soon as he fails he will cease to arouse public interest and the newspapers will carefully file his picture among its archives. He knows, too, that he can not continue to be a champion long-distance swimmer, simply because somebody else will beat him again as he has been beaten before. And knowing all these things, and remembering much more out of the depths of disillusionment, George should now be clad in an armor of cynical sophistication which nothing can penetrate.

A HOLIDAY ON WHEELS

WE ARE TOLD THAT THE MOTOR car has been a familiar means of transportation for more than a quarter of a century; but we also are told that nobody has written a classic essay upon the joys of a motoring holiday. So we need in The Aberdeen Press:

In praise of that commonest mode of locomotion, the motor car, we have at least two immortal productions, Hazlitt's "On Going a Journey" and Stevenson's "Walking Tours," while artificial but more leisurely means of travel, pivoting mainly round the various forms of horse transport, have given us quite a library of respectable literature. But as soon as the propulsive power becomes mechanical the true human enthusiasm, which is the essence of literature, seems to evaporate; as if the consciousness that lies behind human endeavor realized that the train, the bicycle, the motor-car are only part of a passing phase, which will be incomprehensible to our successors of a few hundred years hence.

Holidays, one may suggest, are becoming less holy days. I do not suggest that they are less delightful or less beneficial than the holidays of a century or two ago, but they show less disposition to present themselves in such a fashion that they can be related in prose and with a gusto that will last for ever.

It may be that we can no longer bring permanent literature out of "emotions recollected in tranquillity," because we have no tranquillity. Physically, one feels very peaceful and serene when motoring—and the speed makes no great difference to our sensations; but the queer thing is that a sense of physical repose and well-being does not, as a rule, tend to promote calmness in the mind, unless we regard the desire to sleep as calmness.

Accordingly, although motoring may be as enjoyable as walking, it is a soporific rather than an incentive, and out of it there gushes no brain-wave of literature.

It all amounts to this: If we mortals would only compose ourselves to that fundamental fact that the joy of living is to be found in creating things—not in touching a lever that gives you a thrill; but rather to the raising of potatoes, cabbages, and all the other edibles with which mankind is familiar—with which mankind must be familiar if the human species is to maintain itself.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

MME. TUSSAUD'S WAX WORKS
The London Express

In this unique exhibition of wax works in London is the history of Europe in wax; an enormous collection of motionless figures to which fresh celebrities are continually being added. From their thrones the kings and queens, gorgeously robed, stare down at the passing crowds. Famous men and women of all kinds are represented, from crowned heads to criminals.

Nobody can afford to miss the Chamber of Horrors, which is almost a national institution. Even the inhabitants of Chicago would get a thrill from this dimly lighted room, whose walls are lined with the life-like figures of desperate men. The chamber includes, too, such pleasant additional trifles as the actual rope on which one desperado was swung to death, and the bath in which another took pleasure in drowning several of his wives. Although the typical Londoner is not by any means a morbid person, he does love his waxen thrills, and would not feel at home without them. Even the "talkies" have not taken away the business of this famous exhibition. Fame is of varying degrees, but the celebrity of whatever nationality who finds his image in this gallery is a celebrity indeed.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING
The Ottawa Citizen

When a hitherto unknown Austrian strolled ashore at Dover recently after having trudged across from Cape Gris Nez on a pair of home-made water skis he must have given another shock to the uneasy shades of the long-dead poets and statesmen to whom the Channel was England's final and inviolable defence. In those days an Englishman could sleep soundly at night, knowing that the narrow sea protected him from malignant neighbors. He could—and doubtless did—thumb his nose at a tumbling Bonaparte, camped with all his hosts within sight of the chalk cliffs, yet for the very practical purpose of invasion as far away as the Mountains of the Moon.

But that curious, restless and ingenious little insect, man, is never satisfied to leave well enough alone and it is perhaps poetic justice that all the violations of the sanctity of the Channel which have been going on for the last generation or so should have been started by an Englishman. When Captain Webb divided off the Admiralty Pier at Dover, fifty-six years ago almost to the day of this newest invasion, he started the fashion of crossing the Channel in hitherto unorthodox ways the end of which no man can foresee. It has been swum so often now that the event no longer makes the front page. Airplanes flash over it, thick as gulls; submarines poke about its greatest depths, disregarding its natty currents and even nastier "chops"; to-morrow—or next day—someone will dig a tunnel under it, and then nobody will care how hard it blows.

JOHN DEAN AND UNEMPLOYMENT

To the Editor:—John Dean's letter opens promisingly, with an appeal to reason, but closes dismally with the verdict of class prejudice. He proposes that 2,000,000 persons enjoying taxable incomes, including millionaires, shall be entirely exempt from the contribution whatever to the burden of unemployment relief, except such of the number as may work for wages or salaries. The contribution of the latter section is to be based, not on their entire income, but on the earned income only.

Conversely, he proposes that the entire burden of unemployment relief shall be placed on the shoulders of the millionaires, in receipt of taxable incomes, regardless of the adequacy or otherwise of their present wage. Any of the number may enjoy private incomes to be exempted from the portion of their total which they do not earn.

If this infamous proposal emanates from Mr. Dean in his more reasonable mood, at a time when he is sincerely attempting to "give grains a chance," may we not reverently pray to be delivered from his less reasonable and less brainy proposals?

E. S. WOODWARD.

SIR HENRY AND OTHERS.

To the Editor:—An Ottawa dispatch says Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways, receives $140,000 a year in salary and expenses, the salary being $75,000. Ottawa perhaps does not know what E. W. Beatty of the C.P.R. draws down, but it is safe to guess that it is not a cent less.

The position of Governor-General of Canada costs the Canadian people more than $200,000 a year in various ways. This is nearly four times as much as the position of president of the Canadian National Railways costs the Canadian people. And there is more than the salary involved. Between the two, in Sir Henry Thornton we have an efficient director of a vast railroad system—much larger than the C.P.R.—and therefore have something for our money.

Governors and government houses, federal and provincial—directly cost the taxpayers of the country well towards $1,000,000 a year. Indirectly, they probably cost much more.

ECONOMIST.

THE CURRENCY

To the Editor:—The main cause of dangerous discontent among the workers is the present unintelligent management of the currency. The policy of the note-issuing banks during and after the war of arbitrarily increasing the amount of paper money in circulation, has made havoc of agreements between employers and employees, and has made the currency a tool of the employers and a source of discontent among the workers. The influence of the currency upon economic life cannot be overemphasized. Most people are blessed with one idea, viz.: Socialism or Capitalism. Gessell is the only economic thinker who has found basic economic truth. Here is at least an instance of a human having discovered fundamental truth. He has furnished the foundation on which future humanity will stand in plenty, personal freedom and peace. Under such a system political parties will automatically disappear. There will no more be a money party, a party supplied by the capitalist. There will no more be a party representing the interest of commodities, industrialists and financiers. There will be a party representing the interest of the worker, the farmer, the small businessman, the man who produces the goods and services which are the basis of human life.

dying respect of the native for the white man, and more particularly for the white woman, to the moral laxity of the characters portrayed in American films shown in native theatres. In Victoria, the picture industry, the factors necessary for the establishment of a Canadian film industry which, working in conjunction with or independently of our valley, could at least help to supply the empire-wide demand for pictures free from Hollywood control. To enumerate a few of these factors:

1. Geographically we are within a few days' journey of the heart of the empire—London, of the Far East, of the South Sea Islands, of tropical America and of the Arctic, so that if necessary, companies could at a comparatively small cost be sent to any desired location.

2. On Vancouver Island we have a variety of settings such as it would be hard to find in any other part of the empire, ranging from the almost tropical luxuriance of our valley, to glaciers and snow-capped mountains, and from the sea coast to oak woods which might well be made to represent Shakespearean Forests of the north.

3. Our atmosphere is noted for its clearness. For this reason Nanaimo was chosen by the Dominion government as the most desirable location in Canada for its great astrophysical observatory. Our record of sunshine is too well known to need mention.

4. We are close to Hollywood where are many British actors, actresses and technicians who would welcome the opportunity to return and work under their own flag.

5. We need industries on Vancouver Island, and now is our opportunity to start one that would most surely put Victoria on the map. The moving picture industry has become, if I am not mistaken, the fourth or fifth in order of importance in the United States, and it would be safe to say that "Hollywood" is better known in the most remote corner of the earth than the name of any other city twice its size.

It needs only a little enthusiasm and perseverance for us to get a film industry started here—the first in Canada—and the benefits that this industry would derive from such an undertaking need not be enumerated. STEWART CLARK, September 10, 1931.

Twenty-five Years Ago To-day

THE VICTORIA DAILY TIMES
September 11, 1906

(From The Times Files)

The exhibition grounds are the scene of great activity at the present time. Gangs of workmen are employed upon the race-track, in constructing the paddock upon the grounds fronting the grandstand.

The plans of the Northern Pacific Railway Company to construct a line to Port Angeles, Washington, is a matter of deep concern to many Victorians. For years there has been a large amount of Victoria capital invested in that city. It was expended in real estate at a time when it was supposed that the Union Pacific was going to enter the place. This was some fifteen or sixteen years ago.

Weather Forecast—Victoria and vicinity—fairly and cool, with fog at night.

It is intended next week, upon the return of Alderman Hall to the city, to do actual business with regard to the water problem now before the city.

This morning the United States revenue cutter Grant, Captain W. F. Kilgore, left Seattle, bearing the expedition that will recover the remains of fifteen victims of the Valencia wreck, now lying in shallow graves along Vancouver Island.

C. H. Dickie, of Duncan, the well-known mining man, was in the city yesterday. He is registered at the King Edward Hotel.

Compulsory Auto Insurance Urged

Vancouver, Sept. 11.—The government will be called on at the next session of the Legislature to bring down legislation for compulsory liability insurance on automobiles, covering injury to person and damage to property.

City Solicitor J. B. Williams was instructed by the finance committee of the Vancouver Council yesterday to prepare a resolution to the council at its meeting next Monday.

Alderman E. W. Dean proposed a draft resolution on the scheme based on the legislation in Ontario. He stated the Attorney-General last year had announced his intention of considering compulsory insurance for automobiles at the next session.

Loyal Welcome Awaits King On Return To Siam

Demonstrations of rejoicing are planned in honor of King Prajadhipok when he returns, with sight completely restored, to his kingdom.

While not a highly demonstrative people, the subjects of King Prajadhipok of Siam are now preparing to display their loyalty and thankfulness by demonstrations of popular rejoicing upon the return home of their ruler with his sight completely restored.

King Prajadhipok expects to arrive in Bangkok by October 10 after an absence of nearly six months from his people and the affairs of state. Suffering from a cataract over the left eye, the thirty-six-year-old dictator of Siam, one of the last absolute monarchs on earth, started out on a journey shrouded by anxiety yet filled with hope.

It was a momentous journey, taking him half way around the world in an effort to save his failing sight. The pathetic picture of the little company of Siamese royals, setting out from Bangkok so hopefully to secure the best surgical skill possible and thereby save the monarch's sight, attracted the sympathetic attention of the world.

DELICATE SURGERY
The king faced a delicate operation for the removal of the cataract which was slowly dimming his sight. Dr. John Wheeler, famous eye specialist of the Johns Hopkins Hospital of Baltimore, performed the operation. The sight of King Prajadhipok has been completely restored. The party is now joyfully returning home to be welcomed by a grateful people.

LEFT EYE STRONGEST
The king is now able to see better with his left eye than with his right. It was explained by Prince Savari, his eldest son, and father-in-law, that the king's eyes have to be exercised for some time in order that the restoration of sight be permanent. Eye strain must be avoided at any cost and for that reason the king wears dark glasses.

PERMANENT CURE
The king has been assured by the specialists that, given reasonable care, recovery of his sight will be permanent. The recovery of the king's sight has been followed with the closest interest by his subjects, who have been kept advised of his progress towards recovery by state bulletins. Rejoicing is universal in the little kingdom of Siam and elaborate demonstrations of return early next month of the picture-loving monarch to his people.

CITIES TO GET FUNDS QUICKLY
Provincial Government Would Eliminate Necessity For By-laws

Advancement immediately to the municipalities of British Columbia at a low rate of interest of sums necessary for relief without the municipalities putting money by-laws before the people has been suggested by the British Columbia government to the Dominion government, Hon. J. W. Jones, Minister of Finance, announced yesterday.

In the ordinary course of events municipalities cannot borrow sums exceeding a small legal maximum without reference to the ratepayers. This requires the drafting of a money by-law, its advertising during a period of thirty days, the holding of a poll on the measure and then the issuance of the necessary bonds, and as when a market can be found for these securities. Western municipalities would pay on the average a discount of not less than 5 per cent for their money at this time.

Substitutes in Football Will Prove Popular

English Rugby Should Also Adopt Substitution Rule

New Plan Will Develop Younger Players and Speed Up Game

Substitutes Will Lessen Chance of Serious Injuries to Players

THE TIMES is extremely pleased to see that the Dominion Football Association will permit the use of substitutes in soccer. This paper has long advocated the substitution rule in soccer, but also in English rugby. Ten years ago the sporting editor of this paper launched the move, and from that time on consistently advocated the change.

Now that the D.F.A. has given permission for the use of substitutes it is hoped the Victoria and District Football League will sanction the substitution in Victoria this winter. While the parent body is prepared to allow substitutes it is left to the discretion of the districts as to whether or not the substitution rule is to be adopted.

It is also hoped that those who look after the interests of English rugby will sponsor the substitution rule. They are neglecting the greatest factor for speeding up the game that is within their reach when they say there shall be no substitutes.

What does the use of the substitute to speed mean? It just means that more players will be able to compete, youngsters will develop faster, there will be less stalling on the field, when men are injured they will be removed at once from the field and run no risk of being further injured; there will be no need for teams to play one or two or three men short through injuries to players, and no player who is having an off-day will be allowed to stay on the field, but can be yanked in favor of a player who is sitting on the bench.

There will be more speed in the game, as players can travel at top speed and be relieved for a spell. Soccer, like rugby, needs to have the dull moments eliminated. Players cannot be expected to take bumps and hustles the whole distance without relief. The way they get relief now is by walking about the field when they should be running.

The big arguments against changing the rule have been that the English Football Association would not tolerate it and that a man should be fit when he takes the field. The second objection has always appeared too silly to answer, because no man who is injured or tired or whose leg is broken, can be expected to continue. When a man is hurt he should be immediately replaced.

No one in Canada has any desire to have the English Football Association mend its ways. It has been running soccer for a long time and thinks it knows everything there is to know about the game. In England the substitution rule is foreign to all sports. Cricket, rugby, soccer and grass hockey teams cannot be changed once they take the field. But this is in Canada the substitution rule is foreign to all sports. Canadian rugby, lacrosse and ice hockey all allow substitutes. Where would ice hockey be if the six men who start for a team had to play the whole distance? There would be no thrill in it. Players get hurt in hockey, and imagine the scene if no substitutes were allowed and in the world's championship one team had to play all the way with five men against six. What chance would they have?

Canada has grown big enough to handle its own sports. Substitutes are wanted in soccer and in English rugby for the same reason they are required in ice hockey, Canadian rugby and lacrosse.

Every First Division soccer team in Victoria has a couple of substitutes and some of them never see action in a whole season. They are not benchwarmers because there are no benches at most of the playing fields in Victoria, but they never get a chance to develop. In the future Victoria clubs can have fourteen or fifteen men stripped to play in every game and every one of them can get into action.

We have had two very glaring and deplorable cases of injuries spoiling games when English international teams have been playing in Vancouver. Several years ago the captain of the Vancouver team broke his leg in the first half and the British-Columbians had to play ten men against eleven international for the rest of the game. In the game between the English club and Vancouver last summer a similar accident occurred and the home club had to play most of the game with only seven men.

And according to the rules the Vancouver club could not put a new man on and the English could not take one off. What a beautiful state of affairs!

And reverting to rugby, two Victoria players might have been alive to-day if substitutes could have been used. T.E. players in question received head injuries, but continued to play because they did not want to leave their teams weakened. The result was that the next day bump finished them. And yet the rugby officials do not want to change the rule and use a substitute. They are missing a great bet to speed up their game.

Press dispatches say that Jimmy Adam of Victoria was recorded as voting against the use of substitutes at the Regina meeting of the D.F.A. It is to be hoped, however, that he will not use his influence to keep the substitution rule out of Victoria.

Fights Battle of Master to Retain Lightweight Title

Brilliant World Champion Plays British Challenger Into Defeat in Bout at New York; Canzoneri Given Edge in Ten Rounds; Berg Dropped for Count of Nine by Foul Blow in Eighth; Takes One Other Count of Nine; Britisher Reels Around Ring in Last Five Rounds

Polo Grounds, New York, Sept. 11.—Tony Canzoneri, brilliant champion of the lightweights, played Jackie (Kid) Berg into defeat again yesterday evening and once for all hammered all the title aspirations out of the British challenger.

For fifteen rounds, with only a break here and there as the grinning Italian chose to be merciful, Tony battered the thin-faced Englishman around the ring, while 17,000 spectators, who paid $45,000 to see the duel, cheered, groaned and sometimes booed.

Twice Berg was knocked down for counts of nine, the second time by a left hook to the body that was palpably low, and a half-dozen times he reeled, bleeding and groggy, scarcely able to keep his feet.

Berg, lacking in the early rounds much of the dash and incessant punching ability he displayed in his rise to the position of a title challenger, was called "under-the-gun" by Canzoneri's whistling right-hand, and he went down for a count of nine from a smash to the chin before the first round was half over. For a few seconds it seemed that the Englishman would not go as far as he did in Chicago, when Canzoneri knocked him out in two rounds, but Jackie rose and finished the round without running into further trouble.

A LOW BLOW The second time Berg was on the floor, in the eighth round, the blow that dropped him would have cost Canzoneri his title on a foul if yesterday evening's duel had been fought before the New York State Athletic Commission outlawed low blows. A left hook that landed deep in four territory dropped Jackie screaming, but there was nothing the referee, Fatsy Haley, could do but count nine over him. Berg came up without trouble, but this time Tony lashed him about the ring under a volley of vicious body blows, and while the crowd roared its disapproval Jackie stumbled through the bombardment to the bell.

Aside from these two rounds, the highlights of the evening, Canzoneri fought the battle of a master, battering Berg ceaselessly in all but three rounds, where he tried to outangle the game, but weakened Englishman at close quarters. Berg, a piston-shooting dynamo at close range, managed to outmaneuver the champion and win the fifth, sixth and tenth rounds. Despite the knockdown he suffered, Berg was credited with the eighth round because of the low blow that floored him. The fourteenth round was even.

The Englishman scarcely was able to stagger through the last five rounds as Canzoneri stood off and blasted him with a head and body with rocketing left and right hand smashes. He never quit trying, however, and at times Tony seemed to let him have a taste of the stamper necessary to carry him through the entire fifteen rounds.

The Associated Press score card gave Canzoneri an easy win in ten rounds, with four for Berg and one even.

Berg had about a three-pound pull in the weights, scaling 134½ to 131½ for the champion.

ROUND ONE Berg came out cautiously, discarding his windmill style and Canzoneri waited patiently for him to open up. As they came to close quarters, Tony, punching with steady coiled smashes, two left hooks to the body and a right to the chin. Referee Haley warned him that one left hook was low. Berg ripped into the champion and smothered his head with a volley of light blows. Canzoneri smashed back with both hands, one right drive cut Berg's left eye. A right jab to the chin dropped Berg, but he came up without trouble. Canzoneri battered him along the ropes, driving both hands with fearful precision to the head, until Berg could scarcely stand when the bell sounded.

ROUND THREE Berg boxed carefully, discarding his rushing pell-mell style entirely and Canzoneri calmly drilled two right to the challenger's head opening another cut over Berg's left eye. Tony punched in his own familiar windmill fashion, drove the first time in the match. He drove the champion to the ropes with another flurry, but Canzoneri shook him up again with two hard right to the head. Berg mauled at the champion's face with both hands and Canzoneri was content to let him force the mauling up to the bell.

ROUND FOUR Berg boxed carefully, discarding his rushing pell-mell style entirely and Canzoneri calmly drilled two right to the challenger's head opening another cut over Berg's left eye. Tony punched in his own familiar windmill fashion, drove the first time in the match. He drove the champion to the ropes with another flurry, but Canzoneri shook him up again with two hard right to the head. Berg mauled at the champion's face with both hands and Canzoneri was content to let him force the mauling up to the bell.

ROUND FIVE Berg boxed carefully, discarding his rushing pell-mell style entirely and Canzoneri calmly drilled two right to the challenger's head opening another cut over Berg's left eye. Tony punched in his own familiar windmill fashion, drove the first time in the match. He drove the champion to the ropes with another flurry, but Canzoneri shook him up again with two hard right to the head. Berg mauled at the champion's face with both hands and Canzoneri was content to let him force the mauling up to the bell.

He drove the champion to the ropes with another flurry, but Canzoneri shook him up again with two hard right to the head. SEVENTEEN TO TAKE PART IN LONG BIKE RUN

Victoria Riders Will Make Run to Campbell River and Back To-morrow Night

Seventeen motorcycle riders, with their bikes newly overhauled, will await the starting signal for an all-night endurance run from Victoria to Campbell River and return to-morrow evening at 5 o'clock. Shortly before that time they will gather at the corner of Douglas and Yates streets, where Cecil Brampton will send them off on their long run at five minute intervals.

With the exception of Reg Shanks, who will ride solo, the boys will get away in pairs. They are scheduled to make the ride at an average speed of thirty miles an hour, but will have to estimate the rate at which they travel, since speedometers and clocks will not be used.

Along the route checkers will be placed to see the competitors maintain the conditions of the race, which will be patterned on the regular annual endurance ride of the club.

BEST PERIODS The contestants will be allowed a five minute rest at Nanaimo for refueling and will be given an hour at Campbell River, where they will be checked by Dick "Pop" Shanks. Reg Williams will do the checking at Nanaimo.

The rider making the run within five minutes of the allotted time, without any involuntary stops, will be eligible for first-class awards. If one involuntary stop is necessary he will be eligible for the second-class.

Each rider will be allowed half an hour for every puncture. Special arrangements have been made with the management of the Home Oil Company, which will supply free of charge the entries.

TEAMS ANNOUNCED The result of the drawing for the teams is as follows: Lloyd Fenlon and Jack Rawnsley, Joe Andrews and Jerry Aitken, Cecil Pearce and Clyde Paulson, Walter Rowe and Frank Hutchinson, Lionel Dickson and Tom Britton, Bob Shanks and Jack Watt, Frank Bayless and Jim Norrington, Frank Thomas and Leo Edwards and Reg Shanks. Owing to the odd number of competitors, Reg Shanks, well-known member of the club, will make the ride solo. He will be required to make the entire trip on his own judgment, having no partner with whom he will share his decisions.

"MISS ENID WILSON THE LONG DISTANCE HITTER WHO IS IN THE LADY OPEN" - GOLF CHAMPIONSHIP IS CONSIDERED "THE THREAT" TO "THE LADY" SERIES.

LADIES HAVE THEIR INNINGS

Lady golfers of Canada will have their innings September 28-October 9 in the open championship to be played at Rosedale, Toronto, when Miss Margaret Orcutt will defend her title, with, as an added feature, the entry of Miss Enid Wilson, the famous British long-distance hitter. The coming tournament reminds me of the Canadian open several years ago when a spectator's cough, scarcely audible, proved the turning point of the woman's record at Murray Bay. Miss Orcutt was playing Miss Helen Paget. At the sixteenth tee, where the match was all square, the huge gallery was hushed to a funeral silence, when Miss Collett took her stance to drive. A plaintive little cough broke the stillness, evidently in the mind of the famous American golfer, who topped her ball a few yards in front. Miss Paget won the hole and finally the match. (S.N.S.)

JACK'S TACOMA PUNCH TARGETS STAY UPRIGHT

Tacoma, Wash., Sept. 11.—Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, boxed five rounds against four northwest heavyweights yesterday evening, failing to score a knockdown or a knockout as he toyed with his opponents.

Marine Barneri, Tacoma heavyweight, lasted the opening round. George Rickard, also of Tacoma, boxed two rounds, but managed to survive. "Cyclone" Thompson, Yakima, and Wayne Fitis, Tacoma, were the other two rounds, but were aggressive, but ineffective. Thompson opened a slight cut under Dempsey's left eye.

In the main supporting bout, staged after the Dempsey exhibition, Harry Ketchel, Tacoma featherweight, and Allen Poston, Vancouver, B.C., went six rounds to a draw decision. Ketchel drew in six rounds, and Johnny Hanson, Portland, was the third for a no-count knockdown, but in the other rounds Poston outboxed the Tacoma.

Joe Ruiz, Mexican welter, from Los Angeles, and Jimmy Britt, Tacoma, drew in six rounds, and Johnny Hanson, Portland, was the third for a no-count knockdown, but in the other rounds Poston outboxed the Tacoma.

New York Giants Halt Pirates to Keep Title Hopes

McGraw's Club Stops Winning Streak of Pittsburgh at Eight Straight and Retains Chance of Overhauling League-leading St. Louis; Latter Defeat Boston 7 to 3 Behind Hallahan's Fine Pitching; Athletics and Washington Win

It seems to be only a matter of time now before the Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Cardinals, leaders of the two major leagues, reach the point where their grips on the 1931 pennants are mathematical certainties. The mortality among the erstwhile contenders has been heavy in the last week or so and to-day the Cards have only one possible rival left and the A's two.

The New York Giants kept following the pace set by the National League leaders yesterday, even though they had to put an end to Pittsburgh's recent winning streak to do it, but Brooklyn received its dismissal from the hands of the last place Cincinnati Reds. With all other rivals long since out of it, the Washington Senators and New York Yankees still cling to the faint chance that they will overtake Philadelphia's Athletics although that chance grows slimmer day by day.

Seven games behind, the Giants turned in one of the day's greatest feats as they opened their final tour of the west with a 6 to 1 triumph over Pittsburgh. The Pirates had been going great guns to record eight straight victories. New York ended all that in one inning, driving Benny Kremer to cover and scoring five runs in the first frame, and to complete the victory, Carl Hubbell held Pittsburgh to four hits. There was no gain registered by the Giants, however, for the St. Louis Cardinals won their fifth in a row on their fifth successive good pitching performance. Bill Hallahan, downing the Boston Braves 7 to 3, gave only one hit up to the seventh inning. He let up at the finish and Boston scored all its runs in the ninth, getting seven blows altogether.

This victory alone would have been enough to end Brooklyn's chances of taking the pennant, but Cincinnati completed the job by downing the Robins 5 to 1. Dazzy Vance waged a close battle with Red Lucas before he retired in the seventh for a pinch hitter with the score 2 to 1 against him. But Jack Quinn proved easy and the Reds scored three more in the eighth. Clear out of the race through a nine-game losing streak, the Chicago Cubs came back to winning form with a bang. With Pat Malone pitching well and helping his own game with a homer, the Cubs downed the Phillies 17 to 4.

The Athletics and Washington again played just well enough to win a game and hold their places thirteen games apart at the head of the American League. They each picked up a half game on the New York Yankees, the other team which has a mathematical chance to win, as the New Yorkers had an off day.

The A's hammered Wallace Hebert, St. Louis, for four runs in the first inning then coasted through to a 6 to 3 triumph. Goose Goslin's home run and two abases in the sixth brought the only runs off George Earnshaw. The Senators fielded expertly behind Lloyd Brown, cutting down Cleveland's scoring chances in four double plays as they downed the Indians, 5 to 3. Although outlived thirteen to ten, they had a safe margin when Cleveland drove Boston to cover in the ninth.

Detroit, aided by some fine pitching by young Tom Bridges, disturbed the standing a trifle by passing St. Louis to go into fifth place. Bridges shut out the Boston Red Sox with six hits to beat Wilcy Moore in a mound duel, 3 to 0.

Brampton Seeks New Referees

Excelsiors Lacrosse Team Complains Against Whistle Tooters in New Westminster

May Have Victoria Man For Final Canadian Championship Game To-morrow

New Westminster, Sept. 11.—The referee question for Saturday's final in the Mann Cup lacrosse series reared its head yesterday when both Mike Rodden and Hugh Gifford, the two officials who operated on Monday and Wednesday, came in for such severe criticism from the Brampton Excelsiors that a complete change is possible for Saturday.

Brampton, it seems, thought the Royal defence too strenuous with their sticks and have figured it out that the penalties meted out were altogether too lenient. The question, which is up to President A. E. Lyon, Brampton, will be set to rest, in the event of a change being made, two Vancouver men, or one possibly brought from Victoria, will be designated.

SALMONBELLES CONFIDENT

There is confidence in the Salmon-Bells camp. This was expressed yesterday evening, following the brilliant comeback, and was even more apparent to-day. It is the same spirit that has won lacrosse games in the past for the Salmon-Bells and the same confidence that was displayed by the Adanac basketball team three years ago when they came from behind to knock out Windsor Collegiates in the deciding game.

The royal city is agog with lacrosse excitement. Up at the Russell Hotel, the headquarters of the Brampton team, there is a drowsy feeling that was yesterday morning. Eddie Powers and his boys now realize that they are up against a tough proposition on Saturday and the bright chances of being the Canadian contenders at the Olympic games at Los Angeles next summer are not altogether too rosy at the present moment.

MAKE BOX LACROSSE OFFICIAL

New Westminster, Sept. 11.—Box lacrosse, which has taken eastern Canada by storm this summer, will be the style play among the amateur teams during the season of 1932, according to an arrangement made at yesterday's meeting of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association.

The abbreviated game will apply to the provincial games and Mann Cup series, but not at the Olympic games at Los Angeles in July, 1932. Reports on the wonderful reception that is being given to the game, which was counted by President A. E. Lyon, who was unanimously re-elected to the presidency for a second term. British Columbia will get the honor next year this was agreed upon.

The C.A.L.A. will continue the fight to have former professional players reinstated to the amateur ranks.

The entire 1931 slate was re-elected with the exception of W. O. Osele Graham as secretary-treasurer, and on change in Montreal. Mr. Graham remains on the executive and his place as secretary will be taken by a Toronto man, yet to be appointed.

LIST OF OFFICIALS

Here is the list of officials: Honorary president, P. J. Lally, Cornwall; Ontario president, A. E. H. Coe, Wainwright; president, A. E. Lyon, Brampton; Ontario, first vice-president, Dan McKenzie, New Westminster; second vice-president, L. C. Lawrence, Winnipeg; executive, M. E. F. Kelley, Toronto; E. J. Dopp, Toronto; Reeve R. H. Grauer, Richmond, B.C.; Martin Connelley, Montreal, and W. O. Graham, Winnipeg.

The election of a representative of the Canadian Olympic committee, one to the A.A.U. of Canada was left until the final meeting on Monday when the financial report on the 1931 series will be passed.

HEC GALLOPS HOME TO PAY A FANCY PRICE

Jockey Marshall Brings Home $69 Shot in Sixth Race at Colwood Track

Little Man Returs $25.30 in Seventh; Sun Fash Captures Speed Handicap

Yesterday's racing at the Colwood mile track produced the longest price of the present local season when M. M. Hoyt's Hec, with Jockey Marshall up, ploughed home a winner in the sixth to return $69 for a $2 bet on his nose. Another good win-price was seen in the seventh gallop when Jockey Palasz brought Little Man down in front to pay off at $25.30 for a $2 pastebate. A good crowd was in attendance and the box car figures gave the fans an added thrill.

In the Speed Handicap, feature event on the card, Jockey Craigmyle piloted Sun Fash to a thrilling victory. This young bay gelding, which has proven one of the fastest thoroughbreds racing on local tracks this season, flashed to a great victory over the favorite, Sun Fash came through with a rush in the last quarter to pass the pacesetter Call G and win by two lengths. Christie Flanagan was easily third best. Sun Fash's time was just two-fifths of a second short of the track record established last year by Eppo.

SHASTA MAPLE WINS
In the first race Shasta Maple was easily the best of the field and, after breaking well, took the lead and kept it. Super Fashion was always a challenge and finished second with Oregon Co-ed third.

Brown Bank, the favorite, got down in first place in the second after given a good ride by Jockey Mills. The winner moved through on the rail after making the final turn and won handily with Graceland second and Missive third.

The third race saw Little Broom come through to his third straight victory in as many days. Although packing top impost, the winner gained an early lead and the remainder of the field could never get close. Jack Ellsworth was second and Greenhills third. The former paid $28.50 for a place ticket.

Although carrying 122 pounds, Lady Spain came through in a great stretch drive to capture the fourth. Little Cop set the pace all the way until passed by the winner and finished second. Silk Train was third.

The sixth race saw Hec, a rank outsider, rush into the lead in the final quarter to beat out Swift Cop by a head. The latter was the pacesetter all the way into the stretch. Loba finished third.

WINS BY A NECK
Brought on fast in the stretch by Jockey Palasz, Little Man slipped between Koko and Sippers, running as the field, to beat the former by a neck. Weity, the heavily-backed favorite, was never in the running.

Complete results follow:

Kruse Bites and Kicks But Unable To Beat Sarpolis

Portland Heavyweight Wrestler Throws Everything But Ring Posts at "Doc" in Vancouver Match; Hectic Eight-round Bout Ends in a One-fall Draw; Sarpolis Gets Tying Fall With Scissors in Eighth Round; Spectator Throws Pop Bottle at Kruse; McKay Beats Devito

Vancouver, Sept. 11.—Emil Klank's wrestling follies swung into full action yesterday evening. Dancing masters, pop bottles, slippers, bites and the odd flying tackles were the big features of the revitalized version of grunt and groan.

Bobby Kruse from down Portland way, and Dr. Karl Sarpolis, the clinching chiropractor, rough-housed their way eight almost full rounds to a draw in the headline bout of the bill. Kruse and the doctor threw everything but the ringposts at each other. One zealous spectator launched a pop bottle at Bobby, and the night was a success to the wrestling devotee.

Sarpolis got most of the cheers, but Kruse had the better of the wrestling. Kruse thrives on hate. The customers hate Bob, but they lay it down on the line to express their hate, and Bob's not adverse to the cash money.

Outweighed fourteen pounds, Kruse managed to grab the first fall of the match in the third round with a head scissor and a body slam, in two minutes, fifty-seven seconds. The boys weren't even mildly agitated up till then.

Kruse Bites and Kicks
Around about the fifth they warmed up. Bob started by kicking Carl out of the ring after Sarpolis had gone under the ropes. During the excitement someone threw a pop bottle at Bob. In the sixth Carl got off to a nice flying scissor on Robert, and Bob replied by biting. Then ensued some frantic rabbit punching and flying tackles. Bob backed into his corner, grabbed one of his carpet slippers and belabored Carl. Carl broke away, shoved Bob into a neutral corner and tossed the slipper far away.

In the seventh Sarpolis clamped a nasty wrist hold on Bob, and threatened to break the wrist if Kruse didn't give in. Kruse didn't, and they went into the eighth. Sarpolis chased Bob around while in the eighth, then clamped on a flying scissor, and it was all over in one minute twenty-three seconds. The best wrestling show in months.

McKay Wins
Pat McKay took the odd fall from Joe Devito, the Mussolini man, in the semi-wind-up, which was none too gentle. Pat put on a Boston crab hold in the very first round and made Joe give up. Devito went to work with some body slams in the third and took a fall of his own in 3:21. McKay absorbed plenty of punishment in the fourth, then caught Devito with a cross body and held him for ten seconds.

Count Harkovsky, reformed dancing teacher, knew too much for Ernie Bickerton and played with the iron worker for three rounds, taking the only fall of the match in the third, toppling Bickerton over when Ernie was attempting to slam the Count to the mat.

New York, Sept. 11.—Herb Freeman, promising New York heavyweight, threw Andy Zaharoff, Russian, after sixteen minutes and thirty-two seconds of wrestling in their finish bout yesterday evening. Each weighed 220 pounds.

Schaaf Scores His Eighth Win By a Knockout

Boston, Sept. 11.—Ernie Schaaf, slugging Boston heavyweight, registered his eighth consecutive knockout here yesterday evening by flattening Robert Harkovsky, a former state champion, in the third round.

Ernie gave Robert such a terrific battering during the first two rounds that he was barely able to crawl out of his corner when the third opened. Schaaf pounded over a pair of heavy hooks that dropped the Italian for an eight count early in the first round. Then he coolly watched his opponent pull himself upright. As soon as he gained his feet, Schaaf gave another furious rush, battered Robert's face with both hands and in less than ten seconds had him helpless on the canvas. The Italian stayed down for the full count.

Jack Matson Has Gained Semis In Tourney at Banff
Banff, Sept. 11.—The Prince of Wales Trophy will this year either return to Toronto or go to Victoria, and the chances are 3 to 1 in favor of the former. Three eastern and one western golfer emerged victorious in the quarter-finals yesterday morning. P. G. Hoblitzel, of the Lambert Golf Club, Toronto, eliminated C. W. Jackson, Winnipeg, 7 and 6; Jack Matson, Victoria, beat John E. McKies, Montreal, 3 and 2. W. J. "Bill" Thompson, Toronto, last year's champion, defeated G. L. Ravens, Seattle, 8 and 6, and Philip Farley, Ontario amateur champion, downed F. G. Dickens, Alberta rural champion, 6 and 5.

In the semi-finals to-day Hoblitzel will meet Matson and Thompson will play Farley.

Miss England II Should Travel At 150 Miles an Hour
Montreal, Que., Sept. 11.—The speed-boat Miss England II should be capable of a speed of 150 miles an hour without revolutionary changes in her hull. Fred Cooper, designer of the Harmsworth Trophy challenger, said here yesterday. All that is needed is a better power plant, he said.

Latest Radio Styles At Hudson's Bay Company Show

Radical Change In Principle Involved In New 'Columaire'

Latest Canadian Product of Westinghouse Drawing Crowds at Department Store's Second Annual Radio Show; Most Up-to-date Models of Eight Manufacturing Firms on Display; Fada Neon Light "Flashograph" Proving Popular

Victorians will be able to see the very latest radio styles of eight different manufacturing firms, when the Hudson's Bay Company stages its second annual Radio Show in the spacious new third-floor quarters of the store. Public interest in this group display of radios was demonstrated last year, when at the first show scores of people attended daily. This year the show will last from Saturday to Saturday, opening in the morning at 9 o'clock and close at 6 o'clock.

A Canadian product, the new Westinghouse Columaire will be interesting. It has just been stocked by the Hudson's Bay Company and in principle is something quite new. In Columaire "a" Westinghouse offers the most radical innovation in radio in four years. The build of the Columaire suggests the old grandfather's clock. It is four and a half feet tall and no more than eighteen inches broad. It is finished in mahogany brown, and has as a special feature an eight-day or electric clock near the top. The floor space it occupies is just one square foot.

RADICAL PRINCIPLE

The principle employed is radical. One of the most fundamental, and probably the oldest of principles in the production of musical sound is the "column of air," which vibrates within the instrument, enriching the tone and developing the full range of musical harmonics. From the primitive "pan-pipes" to the modern pipe-organ, practically every musical instrument has employed this principle in one form or other.

JUST TUNE IN ON THIS, RADIO FANS

This vibrant "column of air" pulsating in harmony with the sound waves of the instrument, is the secret of tonal quality, and for the first time the principle has been used in a radio receiver.

Radio engineers have long realized that the amount of air space behind the speaker had a very important bearing on the quality of tone. But the old style type of radio cabinet, with its limitations of space behind the speaker, was unable to provide the four and a half feet "column of air" which scientific tests determined were necessary for perfect tonal quality.

In Columaire "a" however, the speaker is placed at the top of the cabinet, making it possible to secure this four and a half feet air column back of the speaker. In addition, the new design permits the entire cabinet to act as a perfect sounding board.

The Columaire "a" has eight tubes, including the super control screen grid radiotron 235, newly developed by Westinghouse, which gives extreme selectivity and prevents cross-talk and distortion.

FADA "FLASHOGRAPH"
Another feature of the show is the new Fada flashograph cabinet models. At the top of the cabinet a pencil of red neon light rises in a thermometer-like tube during tuning in, and indicates when a station is tuned in to knife-edge accuracy. Other strong points of 1931 Fada radios are pentode power for clear, undistorted volume, and multi-mu tubes, "the new traffic police of the crowded air lanes." New low prices and luxurious cabinet design should make Fada popular with the public.

MANY TYPES
In addition to these two makes, the Hudson's Bay Company will exhibit the latest models of Victor, Majestic, De Forest Crosley, Rogers, Philco and its own specially-made Dictators.

Victor's latest product, the R-12 model, is a nine-tube super-heterodyne with two pentode power tubes and automatic volume control, and sells at an encased in a lovely walnut-veneered console. The model has the latest hair-line precision tuning, tone color control and super-control tubes.

One of the finest radios in the show is the eleven-tube radio-phonograph of Philco, which is all-electric and is designed by Norman Bel Geddes, famous furniture expert. The eleven-tube Lowboy radio, which sells for about half the price of the radio-phonograph, is also a fine model, and so is the low-priced nine-tube Baby Grand.

The popular Canadian radios, the Rogers, are well represented with the latest 1932 super-heterodyne models. Seven absolutely new types are on display. All embody the new tuned radio frequency and pentode tube models.

STOKOWSKI AND HIS ORCHESTRA WILL BROADCAST

Six Concerts of Philadelphia Symphony to Last One Hour and Three-quarters Each

Leopold Stokowski, dynamic conductor of the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra, will be heard with his famous organization in six full-length concerts, each lasting an hour and three-quarters, during the winter of 1931-2, over seventy-one stations of the Columbia network.

The series will establish two records: No symphony programme ever before has been broadcast over so extensive a network and no commercial programme has ever used so many outlets.

In addition to the seventy-one stations in the broadcasting band, Columbia's two short-wave units, W2XE in New York and W3XAU in Philadelphia, will carry the concerts, with a considerable response expected from listeners overseas.

FIRST ON OCTOBER 12
The opening broadcast will be on Monday, October 12, and the remainder are scheduled for dates in November, December, January, March and April.

Leopold Stokowski declared in connection with announcements of the series, that these will be the most important broadcasts ever attempted by the orchestra.

"With the added time on the air at our disposal," he said, "we will be able to present musical compositions in their entirety, expressing all the ideas and concepts of the composer without the necessity of eliminating portions because of time limits."

"We also hope to improve the tonal quality of our broadcasts," Stokowski continued. "Within a few days we shall gather together an impressive assemblage of radio engineers to discuss improvements on which I have already been working, and which I hope to supplement before the first concert in October. Although broadcasting has its recognized limitations, it is the duty of the conductor of a symphony orchestra to the radio listeners of the country to endeavor to improve as far as is in his power the conditions under which his orchestra broadcasts, and to give his hearers the most perfect reproduction possible of an actual concert."

A proposal to broadcast a special programme of music appropriate to the Christmas season, on December 20, also is under consideration, raising the number of concerts to seven.

Les Disciples de Massenet, a Montreal choral group of note under the direction of Charles Goulet, will furnish the music for the Canadian Pacific Railway Hour of Music between 6 and 7 o'clock to-night. Mile. Jeanne Frigard, violinist, and the Imperial Quartette will assist.

Three NBC Jesters Had Unique Start On Radio Careers

Chance Brought Famous Comedy Team Together And Now It Is Popular

Guy Bonham, Dwight Latham and Walter Carlson Crooned to the New England Hills and Liked the Result so They Started Training Their Voices for the Entertaining World; Among the Most Popular of Radio Favorites Now

By PAUL HARRISON

New York, Sept. 11.—Luck, fate or whatever you choose to call the initial factor in the careers of radio stars, has played an important role in the rise of two of the air's most famous comedy groups. Chance brought together the trio of "Jesters" and the team of "Gloom Chasers" and started them on the road to success.

It was by design, however, that the same sponsoring company put the Gloom Chasers and the Jesters under contract and launched them across the country on different networks. It was on a lacy autumn moonlight night in 1929 that luck first took a party in a nearby town and that night drove home together. The New England hills invited harmony, so they started to sing. As the last note died away they looked at each other in something like amazement.

"We ain't so bad!" said Bonham. "We're a 'natural,'" exclaimed Latham. "Ay tank we better sing some more," said Carlson, the dialectician, who had been christened Gustave Eric Walldemar after three Swedish kings.

Next morning they walked into the insurance office and resigned. For two anxious weeks thereafter they cooled their heels in the reception rooms of broadcasting studios. Finally they landed a small assignment with WBZ, Springfield, Mass.

A few months later, the trio signed a contract with a manufacturer and began broadcasting semi-weekly over an NBC-WJZ network from New York. For several months they commuted between Hartford and Manhattan, and went through their rehearsals in the smoking car en route, to the delight of their fellow travelers.

THEY HAD THE STUFF

All are gifted, though informally trained, musicians. Guy I. Bonham, twenty-seven, is the son of an inventor and made his way through the University of Pennsylvania by playing in an orchestra.

Carlson, born in 1901 of Swedish parents, played the drums and saxophone in orchestras at New Britain, Conn. He took delight in imitating his mother's native accent. But not until a year ago did "Wamp" Carlson begin telling his now famous stories in dialect on the air.

Latham, a minister's son, rebelled in boyhood when his father began pointing him for a vocal career. He clerked in various stores, sold automobiles and even studied tree surgery.

All three—and here is proof to the love-lorn lady radio fan that such things really can happen—married girls who had written them admiring letters.

LUCKY GLOOM CHASERS

Now have a look at the Gloom Chasers. F. Chase Taylor and Wilbur Budd Hulick, who went to radio's big-time by a circumstance equally lucky to the midnight ride of the Jesters.

For most of his twenty-six years, Hulick had been fairly sure that some day he'd make his living in the entertainment world. When he was not tearing off long end runs for the school football team at Asbury Park, N.J., he was starring in amateur theatrics. At Georgetown University he enrolled for a music course, and after his graduation Budd crooned and tooted a saxophone in a dance orchestra.

Finally he landed, broke, as a soda jerk in Buffalo. A radio executive saw him cutting up for the customers one day. Three months later he was announcer, actor and continuity writer there.

In the same office was F. Chase Taylor, ponderous, jolly young man who had gone into radio writing for the fun of it. Chase was vice-president of one of his fathers' lumber companies.

One day Hulick dashed wild-eyed into the room where Taylor was writing. "C'mon," he said. "You've gotta help me. I've got a vacant period starting in two minutes and the artists just phoned they can't show up. We'll have to ad lib it somehow."

Taylor stopped only to grab a tiny studio organ and they went before the microphone. After a whispered conference they announced themselves as

TELEVISION IS STILL FAR AWAY, SAYS RADIO HEAD

Chicago, Sept. 11.—Radio fans with modern electrical receivers need not worry about any radical changes that might make their sets obsolete, despite continued improvements and the coming of television.

Such is the promise of J. Clarke Colt, president of the Radio Manufacturers' Association and spokesman for the entire industry.

Colt, also president of the United States Radio and Television Corporation, asserts the industry is getting over its growing pains and is settling down to improving its product rather than changing it. "Like the leaders of every other progressive industry, radio executives and engineers are constantly seeking ways and means to improve their product, to build in better performance and give the public more for its money," he says.

NO FEAR ABOUT TELEVISION

"Television is the next radical change in the radio industry."

"Television is in its very early stages and it will be several years before it reaches the stage of effectiveness of the present radio set. It is now in experimental form, but it has a long way to go before making a serious bid for general public acceptance."

"There is a division of opinion on the matter of whether television will come in a separate unit or be incorporated in the radio set. A good many engineers believe television will be a separate unit, but time and engineering will give the answer."

"Meanwhile there is no reason for scrapping sets or withholding their purchase in anticipation of the time when television will be on a really practical plane."

"Colonel Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle" and "Budd." They told stories; they made up jokes; they rendered selections on the "mighty gas pipe organ."

Dripping with nervous perspiration, they finally staggered out of the studio to find that they had been a hit.

As the Gloom Chasers, on station WMAK and later on WKBW, Buffalo, Taylor and Hulick developed the act that was to make them nationally famous on a Columbia network from New York. Their hilarious disregard of ordinary radio conventions, coupled with the spontaneity of their act, has brought a welcome note of informality to broadcasting.

They actually do make up their foolishness as they go along, agreeing only on some of the jokes they will tell.

Hulick and Taylor hold the long distance ad libbing record. One night in Buffalo, when an accident prevented an orchestra reaching the studio, the pair went on at a moment's notice and held the air for fifty-three minutes.

Through a misunderstanding the name of the woman injured in an automobile accident on Esquimalt Road Wednesday evening was given as Mrs. Thomas Skinner, 937 Caledonia Avenue. The Mrs. Skinner involved in the accident lives in the Kensington Apartments, Pandora Avenue.

Of the fifty lots offered for sale in the city last night by the municipality of Esquimalt, only two were sold, it was announced today. They netted the sums of $196 and $99 respectively. Last year twenty-three were offered for sale and three were purchased.

In the contest held during the fair in conjunction with the display of the Post Office, George Bohlander, 101 Moss Street, made the nearest estimate of the number of gallons of fuel used by John A. Turner in heating his Uplands home of nine rooms. The correct number was 860, and Mr. Bohlander's estimate was 888 gallons.

Dr. N. A. MacRae MacKenzie, nephew of Dr. A. O. MacRae and Mr. Mrs. W. A. Patterson of this city, who is professor of international law at the University of Toronto, will pass through Victoria to-morrow afternoon aboard the C.P.R. liner Empress of Canada, with the Canadian delegation to the Pacific Relations Conference to be held at Hangchow, China.

FOX FARM IN URBAN SAANICH TO BE CLOSED

Council to Terminate License of Whittier Avenue Ranch Next July

Cancellation on July 15, 1932, of the license of the Gilt Edge Fox Farms Limited to operate a fox farm on Whittier Avenue, near Douglas Street, in Ward Two, was decided upon by the Saanich Council yesterday evening, on recommendation of the court of inquiry which has been investigating written complaints from residents on Tennyson Avenue and other nearby streets. The court consisted of the entire council except the Reeve.

The resolution was moved by Councillor Dennis Hoare of Ward Two, who believed the complaints would be settled with allocation of a definite date when the nuisance will terminate. He believed that fairness required a reasonable time be given for removal of the foxes and accepted the statement of the fox company that new quarters would not be obtainable before the breeding season commenced, after which time the valuable stock could not be removed without heavy losses being incurred.

A. J. Patton, on behalf of the Gilt Edge Fox Farms, submitted a written agreement to cease breeding at the Whittier Avenue property on July 15, when fox pups born in March will have been weaned. Animals for which other quarters could not be provided would be killed, the court was assured.

C. H. Tait, attended the session as legal adviser and recommended action in accord with Mr. Patton's suggestion.

PREMIER OPENS SAANICH FAIR ON WEDNESDAY

Entries For Saanichton Exhibition Indicate New Record Will Be Established

Premier Tolmie will open the sixty-third annual exhibition of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Society in the agricultural grounds at Saanichton next Wednesday.

Entries being received by the secretary, Stuart Stoddart, indicate this year's fair will surpass all others in size. Special classes have been added in nearly every section, the cattle section offering special prizes.

Lieutenant-Governor Fordham Johnston has offered a silver trophy for the best cow, any age, any breed, and exhibited animal to be bred and raised by exhibitor.

H. E. Burbridge and J. R. Scooby are also donating silver trophies to be competed for in the cattle section.

Palm Daries offer a special prize for the best herd of four females, any age, and breed, dam and exhibited animals, bred and raised by exhibitor.

Whitby and Blake are offering a special prize for three registered Jersey animals.

A special class has been added in this section for the boys and girls' southern Vancouver Island registered Jersey Cattle Club.

It is expected the class for the collection of vegetables for the J. W. Tolmie silver challenge cup and miniature cup will again be strongly competed for. George Little is now the holder of the cup.

The special classes which have been added by the Saanich council for grains, grasses and seeds have attracted considerable interest. The section has been added to stimulate interest in the world's grain exhibition and conference at Regina next year.

Winners in these classes will be expected to enter their exhibits in the Vancouver winter fair.

The ladies' children's and photograph sections have a larger number of classes than in previous years, many special prizes having been added.

The rabbit, goat and poultry sections offer a number of interesting classes, many special prizes being included.

The committee in charge of the annual Saanich school sports, scheduled for the afternoon of September 18, has completed arrangements. The elimination events for the jumping classes will be held in the Agricultural Hall Park, Saanichton, and at Reynolds Road grounds, next Saturday afternoon.

Keen competition between the schools is expected for the silver trophies, the David Spencer Cup for schools of five rooms and over, Saanich Board of Trade Cup for schools of three and four rooms and the W. O. Wallace Cup for schools of one and two rooms.

Capt. Nat. Gray is convener of the committee, R. Bryden, secretary to the Saanich Board of School Trustees, will act as clerk of the field, and will be assisted by A. Jeune. The following are on the committee: J. E. Nunn, Ralph Barclay, J. E. Nimmo, A. Sanbury, W. E. Wilson, Pete Turgoose, A. Bastin and W. Turgoose.

A large number of medals are to be completed for in the Highland events.

A special class has been added for pipers under twenty-one years of age. Another special class has been added by the Saanich Pioneers' Society for an old-time quadrille competition. The Victoria Girls' Band will render selections in the grounds in the afternoon.

The society's annual ball will be held on Wednesday evening, when a car will be drawn for. Tickets entitle holders to admission to the fair and also to the ball in the evening.

Prince Svasti Had Trouble With Editors

Royal Publisher of Bangkok Made Number of Changes With Editorial Staff Before He was Satisfied; Dictates Paper's Policy, But Otherwise Keeps Clear of Office

Prince Svasti is without doubt the most democratic member of the Siamese royal family. He is a cheerful man of small stature and inclined to rotundity, with a debonair manner and a flair for expensive cigars.

While he is not prepared to admit it off hand, probably due to unpleasant experiences with a certain type since he reached this continent five months ago, he has a kindred sympathy with newspapermen, for he is in the newspaper publishing business himself, and would be the first to realize that enterprise and persistence is essential to the makeup of the successful news reporter.

In the course of an interview which he granted to a representative of The Times following his arrival here, Prince Svasti spoke specifically of some of the difficulties he has experienced since he took over the managing directorship of The Bangkok Daily News, which newspaper, being a government organ has a powerful voice and the largest circulation of any journal in Siam.

It has been the policy of the Prince in the past to employ American newspapermen on the editorial staff of The News.

GOOD, BUT UNRELIABLE

The first editor of the paper, was like other good newspapermen of former days, he had an overpowering fondness for intoxicating beverages.

"Oh, how drunk he used to get!" chuckled the prince in telling of the escapades of his editor. "He would become so incapacitated at times that I finally had to get rid of him in order to save the paper. But he was a good newspaperman when sober."

To replace him, Prince Svasti then paid the expenses of another American editor to Bangkok and he became involved in an unending affair which brought about summary dismissal.

A New Yorker next took control of the destinies of the paper, but he had the misfortune to suffer from weak lungs, and was forced to return home. The Prince said he met him in New York on his recent visit there, and he appeared to be all right.

The Bangkok News is edited at the present time by a journalist named McKelvie, and he appears to be turning out the paper in an entertaining form to the entire satisfaction of his august chief.

KEEPS AWAY FROM OFFICE
"I do not bother with the production of the paper," said the prince. "I dictate its policy, of course, but otherwise see very little of the office."

When questioned further as to the editorial policy of the paper the prince indicated that it was at no time critical of the government.

Chatting easily in the Blue Room of the Empress Hotel, to which apartment he adjourned following a drive to better observe the fine approach to the Inner Harbor, Prince Svasti said he had enjoyed his visit to Canada and the United States immensely.

After leaving King Prajadhipok in New York on July 27, Prince and Princess Svasti went to Detroit, where the Prince met the leaders of the automobile industry, and visited an old friend, Dr. Waldron.

NET WILL ROGERS
He was deeply interested in the moving picture colony at Hollywood, where he visited on arrival at Los Angeles. While there the Prince and Princess were the guests of Will Rogers, who at the time was depicting the role of an ambassador in a talkie produced in the Fox studios.

"He was very good as an ambassador," said the Prince. "As I arrived here I received a picture of him; I will show it to you."

On reaching Seattle the Prince was surrounded by a crowd of reporters and photographers, eager to get him to talk and pose for a still picture.

"It was somewhat disconcerting as I was about to be received by members of the Chamber of Commerce and other prominent citizens of Seattle," said the Prince. "One of the photographers with a huge camera attempted to hustle me into line for a picture and I felt annoyed, explaining that it was my duty to first meet the welcoming committee."

He added that he had more or less become used to the methods of entering newspapermen since his arrival in the country. "Some are polite and gentlemanly while others adopt methods of which I disapprove," he said.

PRINCESS INDISPOSED
Princess Svasti was suffering from a cold on arrival Wednesday and remained in her suite, while the Prince and their two sons, Prince Nondiyavak and Prince Arjuna, aged twenty-four and twenty-one years respectively, explored the city and hotel gardens.

Prince Svasti, who is uncle to King Prajadhipok and father of Queen Rambai Barni, speaks English fluently and dresses in the height of European fashion. He wore a light gray sack suit yesterday with a lightweight felt hat and carried a cane. He wears horn-rimmed glasses of the prevailing style.

Prince Nondiyavak, who is studying at Georgetown University, and Prince Arjuna, a student at Yale, will return to the eastern states to their father and mother here on Saturday.

TWO CHILDREN ARE DROWNED

Bellingham, Wash., Sept. 11.—Two children were drowned and six others persons were rescued when the small boat, Bessie, capsized in Deception Pass yesterday.

Barbara Jean Haddon, twenty months, and Jackie Haddon, three children of Mr. and Mrs. George Haddon of Accord, lost their lives. The tragedy occurred when the children were returning from a trip with their parents and Mr. and Mrs. William Dover, Eddie Haddon and Ray Robinson, all of Anacortes. The father was piloting the boat and bucking the tide when the craft suddenly overturned.

ASK PROVINCE FOR FORESHORE ALONG GORGE

Two Victorians Mystify Saanich By Application; to Be Investigated

An application for foreshore rights on the waters of the Gorge has been made to the Provincial Government by A. Alexander and D. McMillan of Victoria, and the Saanich Council will seek information as to the intentions of the applicants.

Following advertisement of the application in the British Columbia Gazette, prompt inquiries had been made by Clerk Sewell, who reported he had received no reply from the Lands Department.

The foreshore area sought extends from 300 feet southwest of Austin Avenue to the river, a distance of half a mile, and takes in both shores of the Gorge.

Councillors could not fathom the reason for the application, but feared creation of a nuisance if the object was removal of large deposits of shell known to exist. The area was stated to have been well known as an oyster bed many years ago.

BUSINESS MEN SUPPORT BIG "Y" APPLE DAY

Local business men approached by Y.M.C.A. Apple Day committee seem to think that this new idea of securing funds for the Y.M.C.A. is most novel, and will undoubtedly meet with a hearty response from the public. Already several prominent men have expressed themselves as being anxious to support it in every way. Not only have there been offers of apples, but some very substantial amounts of money have been promised to the canvassers when they make their calls on Apple Day, Saturday, October 3.

F. E. Winslow, manager of the Royal Trust Company, says: "It is a splendid idea. I know personally the tremendous influence for good that the Y.M.C.A. has on boys and young men. It is a permanent institution, worthy of every citizen's hearty support. I know that the people of Victoria will rise to the occasion and support it handsomely. I will do all I can to help you."

A. J. Watson, manager of the Hudson's Bay Company, says: "Regardless of the many calls made on us for assistance at this time I think the appeal of the Y.M.C.A. in its Apple Day is outstanding, and should have the loyal support of every citizen. I know of no finer or better investment than in assisting the Y.M.C.A. in carrying out its programs, both physically and morally, among the men and boys. The idea of using an apple instead of a tag is certainly novel, and should create a tremendous interest."

J. Pullen, manager of Logan and Bryan, brokers, says: "The Y.M.C.A. has assuredly adopted an appealing method of securing funds for their enterprise. I know the Y.M.C.A. well. It has been a big thing in the lives of a great many young men, and the success of their Apple Day assures a continuance of their very worthy work. I trust the objective aimed at will be greatly exceeded, and I know it will have the support of everyone."

REGULATION OF HEALERS PLAN

Mr. Justice Murphy to Hold Inquiry Into Drugless Methods Shortly

To recommend what measures B.C. shall adopt for regulation and control of drugless healers, Mr. Justice Murphy of the Supreme Court, will hold an investigation shortly into the practice of chiropractic and other forms of healing. It was announced from the Legislative Buildings yesterday.

The commission is fixed in accordance with the announcement of the Premier at the last session of the Legislature, when it was stated an inquiry would be made into all branches of healing.

Among other things which the commission is instructed to ascertain is the determination of what practising chiropractors are duly qualified within the Medical Act, if schools and colleges from which they graduate give training adequate for the protection of the public and the extent and effect of other forms of drugless healing apart from chiropractic. He will recommend with regard to legislation on registration and control of chiropractors in the province and the scope and composition of an examining board to regulate the profession.

AT THE THEATRES

MISS BARRYMORE SAYS STOCK IS BAD FOR ACTING

Famed Actress, Here To-morrow, Tells Stage Sidelights in Interesting Interview

"Acting to-day is more specialized than it used to be. Versatility is not to be found as before. Background—tradition—are lacking. So many go on the stage with too little education and too much resource. Under such conditions is seized upon and exploited, and the press agent informs the willing public that another Duse has arrived," says Ethel Barrymore, who will play at the Royal Victoria Theatre to-morrow evening in Sheridan's immortal comedy, "The School for Scandal."

Stock companies offer opportunities for a variety of experience, believes the celebrated star, as expressed recently in a magazine article on acting. "I never cease to marvel at the way they work on two or three plays at one time—playing one, rehearsing another, and then a really excellent performance—for which the director is to be praised. "In my career, I have never had stock experience. It was always one play at a time, but I have had, on the average, more than one a year, but there has been variety, from lightest, subtlest comedy to the finest tragedies. And for the last sixteen years I have played on with only two or three weeks' vacation. I have always believed, however, that the actor's salvation lies in his taking many and diverse parts. In no other way can he gain flexibility and variety, which he must have if he is to bring zest into his work."

"The public is much more sophisticated to-day than it was several years ago. It is more critical, more discerning and plays that are serious, searching dramas have more of a chance. Doors have been opened, shutters have been thrown back and fresh air has come through the windows. It is as if it should be. People should know the facts of life. There is no greater enemy of man than ignorance or prejudice that goes with ignorance."

DOMINION THEATRE
His work in "The Vice Squad" has earned Paul Lukas the male lead in "Women Love Once," the Zoe Atkins talkie, produced by Paramount, which is now showing at the Dominion Theatre.

Lukas has been steadily climbing upward in the ranks of featured players and he is now one of the leading favorites. It is a noteworthy fact that critics have never failed to credit him with artistic portrayals in every role he has essayed—in "Young Eagles," "Half-Way to Heaven," "Anybody's Woman," "The Right to Love," "Unfaithful," and a number of other earlier films.

In "Women Love Once" he is the central male character. Juliette Courtney also has a role in this picture.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE
Cecilia Loftus, international star, makes her all-talking picture debut in the comedy of screen luminaries as Ann Harding, Clive Brook and Conrad Nagel in Frank Lloyd's Fox Movie-drome, "East Lynne," which is now playing to capacity audiences at the Playhouse Theatre.

Although past the half century mark, as years go, she still retains the spirit, charm, and grace of a young girl and yet has had the flexibility to keep step with the modern.

Early in life "Gisela," as she was known, cherished the wish to become a great actress. Eventually she won her stage chance and became an instantaneous sensation.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Knox Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. S. Lundie on Wednesday evening and decided to hold the autumn bazaar on November 19, and to consider repainting the interior of the church.

The Women's Missionary Society will resume regular meetings on Thursday, September 17, at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Bowen Colthurst on Wednesday afternoon and received a financial report of the sale of work held in August. An address was given by Mrs. Cropper, president of the Victoria branch of the Mothers' Union.

A military five hundred party will be held in Sooke Hall on Saturday evening, on the auspices of the Sooke and North Sooke Women's Institute.

College girls prefer long hair or shoulder-length bobs to boyish shingled tresses. It was discovered when Paramount invaded the campuses of California colleges for atmosphere players for "Confessions of a Co-Ed," the authentic story of college girl's love life, which is showing at the Columbia Theatre to-day.

High Class Picture Of War Days Opens To-morrow Afternoon

"Tell England" at Coliseum Theatre Attracting Much Attention Here

The Montreal Star has the following to say of "Tell England," opening to-morrow afternoon at the Coliseum Theatre for a week's showing: "This is a picture which many Canadians have waited a long time to see. It tells the undying story of Gallipoli—the story of a glorious failure, of a heroic sacrifice—through the experiences of the two chums of Ernest Raymond's splendid novel, 'Tell England,' who share together in that ill-starred adventure, which proved so costly to British arms, but which will remain indelibly inscribed upon the annals of heroic achievement. The producer of 'Tell England' has indeed told the world a thrilling and impressive story. This picture is a dignified and vital memorial of those who laid down their lives at Gallipoli, as well as a striking example of the high quality of the British film of to-day."

"Not alone in the detail—which is wonderful, and for which the authority of the British Navy and army departments is guaranteed, as well as the word of Sir Ian Hamilton, who plays in the film the precise role he filled in the Gallipoli campaign—but in its utter absence of heroics, in its quiet but grim spirit of determination that suggests itself so vividly from the beginning of the campaign to the withdrawal (by the way, it seems a pity that this part of the film are eliminated, for purposes of compression, since it is the logical and dramatic finale) and in the quite extraordinary realism of the fighting scenes, 'Tell England' must be accorded by all impartial observers a place with 'Journey's End' and 'All Quiet on the Western Front.' It is, indeed, in some matters an achievement beyond either of these memorable pictures."

AT THE COLISEUM
Audiences cannot fail to appreciate the witty repartee that enlivens the "On Approval," the all-dialogue Frederick Lonsdale comedy showing to-day at the Coliseum Theatre. The film is fortunate in having such brilliant dialogue penned by the inimitable Frederick Lonsdale, who is equally fortunate in having a splendid cast—Tom Walls, Lewis Milestone, Yvonne Arnaud and Winifred Shottor—to give the point and finesse necessary. Altogether a happy combination and one that gives genuine entertainment and enjoyment. "On Approval" ran for a considerable period at the Fortune Theatre, London, and proved a great success. When the film was shown in London the critics stated that the screen version was as great, if not greater, than the play.

Only two more days remain in which to see "The Front Page" at the Capitol Theatre.

The crowds which have packed this theatre are the best indication of the drawing power of this picture which, as a play, ran on Broadway for nearly a year.

Howard Hughes has brought "The Front Page" to the screen with all of its tang of salty language and unrestrained conversation.

Adolphe Menjou, Pat O'Brien, Mary Brian, Edward Everett Horton and Slim Summerville are among those in the cast. Lewis Milestone, who made "All Quiet on the Western Front," is responsible for the direction.

Bearish Crop Reports Bolster Wheat Market

Canadian Press
Winnipeg, Man., Sept. 10.—Broyed up by firmer tone in outside markets, wheat traders on the Winnipeg grain exchange appeared more confident today. Values closed 1/2 to 1/4 cent higher than Wednesday's final figures. October closed at 52 1/2, up 1/4; December

To-day's Grain Markets

WINNIPEG
(By Logan & Bryan)
Winnipeg, Sept. 10.—Wheat: The market again took a firm tone to-day with prices higher than the previous close throughout the session, and reaching top levels the latter part of the day. There was a good export business working, and it was estimated that 2,000,000 bushels had been taken out of this market since Thursday morning, which included the half million bushels ordered sent to Churchill as a test shipment.

The Liverpool market was a little firmer than here, and news from abroad was a little more friendly to wheat than it has been, although the demand is still rather quiet. Broomfield reported that a chartering of Russian wheat, with less pressure from the Black Sea and Argentine. Shipments were 1,301,000 bushels from Argentina and 1,441,000 from Australia. Reports from the Orient suggest a big demand for wheat the coming season. Primary arrivals to-day were 1,233,333 against 2,388,000 a year ago.

Coarse grains: These markets were all firmer, largely in sympathy with the upturn in wheat. There was some inquiry from abroad for oats, barley and rye, but the business working was quite small.

Oats closed 1/2 to 1/4 higher, barley 1/2 to 1/4 higher, and rye 1/2 to 1/4 higher. Flax: This market was stronger in sympathy with other markets, and the U.S. government report, which was bullish on flax, closing prices 1/2 to 1/4 higher.

Liverpool due 1/2 to 1/4 higher on Winnipeg.

The Final Test of a Man's Love Is His Willingness to Work for a Girl, to Keep a Girl Soft and Warm and Safe, and Give Her Pretty Things, Says Dorothy Dix

A YOUNG man wants to know how he can tell when he is really in love. Well, son, that is a hard thing to do because there is so much synthetic love that looks and tastes like the real thing that it is difficult to tell a passing fancy from the real thing. A lot depends on the sentimentality of the man himself. Just as there are people who are susceptible to any infection and who always catch any ailment that is going around, so there are men who are so sensitive to feminine charm that they fall for every pretty face that comes their way.

They can run a temperature over a curl on the nape of a white neck. A pair of dreamy eyes brings on the most alarming palpitations of the heart and gives them that sinking feeling, while a moonlight night with a saxophone sobbing in the distance fills them with chills and fevers from which they never expect to recover. Therefore, if they have any of these symptoms, they conclude that they have a fatal love case. But not so. They have diagnosed their symptoms incorrectly. They are merely in love with love and any girl looks as if she was it until the next one comes along.

Now, as a matter of fact, it is not an easy thing for a man to tell whether Cupid has hit him a mortal blow or whether he has only received a surface wound that will heal without even leaving a scar. Many a man, for instance, thinks that he is falling in love with a girl for keeps just because she is a good-looking. He feels that he could gaze at her forever, and then, somehow, without his even knowing when it happened, he discovers that he is as tired of looking at her as he would be at the same old picture and that his eyes have wandered to another face.

Or a man may think he is in love with a girl because she is such a good little pal with whom he can play around and to whom he can tell his troubles and say anything that pops into his mind. Then another girl dawns on the scene and he finds out that friendship is not love and that the chum girl raises no more commotion in his breast than his little brother does.

Or a man may think he is in love with a girl just because she has become a sort of habit with him. She may work next to him, or she may be the landlady's daughter or a girl who boards where he does and he gets in the way of going around with her and he misses her when she goes off on her vacation and he thinks that is love. But after a while she begins to get on his nerves and he realizes that she is boring him to death and he resents her air of proprietorship and her thinking he belongs to her and he wonders how she got that way and why he did not always notice how dumb she was and what a bad complexion she had.

Or a man may think he is in love with a girl because she is a peachy dancer or because she is so domestic or because she is so much in love with him. And then he finds another girl who is a better dancer and has a newer line of attractions or one who fires his fancy and then all the old bets are off and the new ones are on.

So it is no wonder, after so many false alarms and observing the mistakes that men make when they marry on insufficient evidence from their own hearts, that a prudent lad would like to have some sure-fire way of testing his own feelings on the safe side of the altar.

But how can a man tell when he is really in love? By these signs and tokens, Does she look just as good and desirable to you when the crimp is gone out of her hair and the rouge off her cheeks and she is tired and limp as she does when she is all dolled up in her prettiest frock and with her complexion on and a fresh marcel?

Can you have a good time of an evening just sitting around talking to her or do you always have to step out somewhere in order to amuse yourself. Does she intrigue your mind as well as your body? Do you think of life together as just a perpetual petting party or as a comradeship in which two good friends will work and play and fight and struggle and achieve together and in which nothing else will matter much, because you will have each other?

When you think about getting married, do you consider what you can do to make her happy or are you mentally making a list of the things that you expect her to do to make you happy? Are you willing to make sacrifices for her? Do you feel that you are willing to give up your personal liberty for her; that you would rather spend your evenings at your own fireside than at night clubs and that you would rather spend your money on millinery and dry goods and groceries and sterilized milk and perambulators than on sport cars and golf and poker games and fishing trips?

And finally, are you willing to work for her? That is the final test of love. When a man rolls up his sleeves and tackles his job with ten times the energy that he ever put into it before, when he wants to work, work, work so that he can keep a girl soft and warm and safe and give her pretty things—that is love. That is the real thing and all the balance is blah.

When you are willing to work for a girl, you have got a genuine, bona fide case of love and nothing but marriage will cure you.

Story of the Bullet

The bullet was a mystery to Indians when white men arrived on the continent. Yet an Indian—he had known the facts—might have said:

Bullet eight inches from gun muzzle. Lines show wires which touched off flash photograph.

"The bullet is like an arrow tip, tipped up in a little ball and thrown by the power of gunpowder instead of the power of the bowstring." Going still farther back in history, we may compare a bullet to a stone hurled forward by the power of human muscles. The weapons of the early men must have been clubs and stones.

At an early time, men learned that sharp stones could be fastened to the end of a long stick and used to kill animals. That marked the beginning of the stone-pointed spear. A later invention was the bow-and-arrow. An arrow is a spear on a small stick.

The cross-bow was another step in a story of the bullet. Men learned that by turning a crank the string of a warlike blow could be pulled back. Cross-bows were sometimes released by pulling a trigger.

Gunpowder came into use in western Europe six centuries ago. The first guns were wide-mouthed cannon. Large stones were used as cannon balls.

Early cannon did not do much damage to "the enemy," but they pointed the way to more dangerous guns. To-day we have rifles, shotguns and pistols, as well as cannon which send shells many miles. During the World War, the Germans bombarded Paris with cannon which shot seventy-six miles. The bullet or "shell" weighed 285 pounds. When such a cannon was fired, the barrel of the cannon was pointed upward. The shell traveled to a height estimated at twenty-four miles. At that height the air is extremely thin, and gives little resistance to the passing of a shell.

Other cannon used in the World War did not fire so far, but sent larger and more dangerous shells. One type hurled a shell weighing a ton to a distance of seventeen miles. Bullets have been photographed as they left the barrels of rifles and cannon. The flash for the camera has been made when bullets touched electrified wires. The speed is terrific—in the case of the Springfield rifle 2,700 feet per second.

"How do you get him to chew his food?"

"I give him Shredded Wheat and it's so crisp he has to chew it—the more he chews it the better he likes it and the more nutriment he gets out of it. Many children bolt down their food without chewing—that means imperfect digestion, poor teeth and unhealthy gums. Shredded Wheat with milk makes a perfect food for growing children, and it's perfectly delicious with bananas or stewed fruit."

IBANEZ RULE BY IRON HAND AROUSED FOES

Regime Born of Coup Instituted Many Public Works But Acted Rigidly

Chile Would Never Follow Other States in Revolt, It Was Said

The fires of revolt have been smoldering in Chile for nearly a year, though supporters of President Carlos Ibanez have consistently deprecated the possibilities of his being ousted from governmental control. Since his election to the Presidency in July, 1927, Gen. Ibanez had ruled with an iron hand, says Current History.

Like Mussolini and Primo de Rivera, he sought to introduce realism and pragmatism into politics. He dominated the army, navy and civil government. He maintained that the strong thing was the just thing, and he carried through his reforms with a ruthlessness reminiscent of the days of Diego Portales, almost a century before.

Gen. Ibanez is a military man turned statesman. He is said to be of Welsh extraction, his family name originally being Evans. He got control of the government by a coup d'etat. When he first became a figure in national politics, in 1923, Arturo Alessandri, a lawyer of humble origin, was President of Chile.

ALLESANDRI RESIGNS
Senor Alessandri was the first "man of the people" to hold that office, and he no sooner entered it than his troubles began. He found it impossible to get a working cabinet or adequate support either in the Senate or Chamber of Deputies. Before a year had elapsed he resigned.

However, one of his officers persuaded him to remain in office, and he did until a joint ultimatum from the army and navy, demanding the immediate enactment of certain reforms, caused him to resign again in September, 1924. He fled to Argentina in a special train, flying the United States flag.

A military junta then seized control of the government. But the head of the junta was extremely unpopular, and in January, 1925, he was thrown out. A new junta took control and Senor Alessandri, who was then in Venice, was invited to return. He did, reaching Santiago in March, 1925. His experiences in Congress under the existing constitution had been so disastrous that he proceeded to legislate by passing decrees. But since there was a demand for the restoration of constitutional rule, he appointed a committee to draft a revised plan of government.

As world economic depression grew more and more acute, however, dissatisfaction developed in Chile as in other South American countries. In the summer of 1930 the government of President Siles was overthrown in Bolivia. This was followed by revolutions in Peru, Argentina and Brazil. Symptoms of uprising became apparent in Chile, but friends of President Ibanez scoffed at the idea of trouble.

They insisted that he had a hold on the country that nothing less than a most violent eruption could break. They pointed to his popularity with the army (for he is an old cavalry officer) and with the carabineros who police the country, and are also soldiers. With his carabineros behind him, they said, he could put down any attempt at a revolt and could even stand off the army, were it to falter in its allegiance to him.

PEOPLE NOT REVOLUTIONARY

But above everything else, they counted on the temperament of the Chilean people, who are sober, peace-loving and progressive. They are descendants, many of them, of the ancient Mapuche Indians who successfully resisted the Inca invasion that swept south from Peru, and afterwards were equally successful against the invading Spaniards. The bulk of immigration into the country has been Anglo-Saxon or German, and they are less prone to revolts and sudden explosions than their South American neighbors.

The plan was drafted, approved by a national plebiscite and went into effect two months later. The plan was a frank recognition that parliamentary government in Chile had been a failure and provided for a return to the principle of a strong independent executive. Under the new arrangement the President was elected for six years by direct vote, and was ineligible for immediate re-election.

FIGUEROA BECOMES PRESIDENT
President Alessandri resigned as soon as the constitution was adopted. Until the next elections in October, 1925, his place was filled by the Vice-President. The next President was the Conservative candidate, Emiliano Figueroa.

At this time Gen. Ibanez, with many years service in governmental positions to his credit, had become a power in Chilean politics. He was named Minister of the Interior under President Figueroa. But he aspired to a higher office. President Figueroa soon found his position untenable. Early in 1927 he was forced to resign. The Council of Ministers immediately made Gen. Ibanez Vice-President, and at a special election a short time later he was elected President.

His was a dictatorial government from the outset. He immediately set about eradicating the old bureaucracy. In the interest of more efficient administration as well as of economy he reduced the country's twenty-three provinces to sixteen, and cut down the departmental comprising the provinces proportionately.

Sinecures were abolished, surplus officeholders ousted, and dismissals made that saved the government 26,000,000 pesos. His regime was hailed as a triumph of the middle-class. It dislodged the ancient political aristocracy whom Gen. Ibanez accused of aiming "at fattening the privileged classes in a position to profit at the expense of the public good and thus create willing adherents to the cause of Communism."

TO FOSTER AGRICULTURE
Ibanez caused new irrigation projects to be undertaken, and hundreds of miles of highways built connecting farms with railway stations. He sought to revive the nitrate industry, from which the country derives its principal revenue, by increasing the output and stabilizing prices. And he also undertook sweeping educational reforms.

Aurora To Be Photographed In Colors Soon

New York, Sept. 11.—Canned, but in their natural color, the northern lights are likely to be brought to the silver screen this fall with the success of an expedition which set out yesterday for the north.

Headed by Capt. Fivel M. Williams, the party plans to photograph the aurora borealis in color movies, and study its relation to the Heavlyside layer, the stratum of ionized atmosphere which deflects radio signals and does strange things to telegraph signals.

Capt. Williams, R. J. Marshall, cameraman and assistant scientist, and W. Allen Luey, plan to go by train to Churchill, Hudson Bay, to establish a base. They expect to be gone six weeks. The trip is primarily a preparatory excursion for a larger expedition next June, according to Capt. Williams.

Viscount Cecil Tells League Assembly Nations Should Abolish Air Manoeuvres

Geneva, Sept. 11.—Viscount Cecil of Great Britain, addressing the League of Nations Assembly yesterday, urged the necessity of "reviving international investments" if the world is to be saved from impending financial disaster.

The British delegate read with apparent approval a portion of the Wiggan bankers' committee report, and emphasized his conviction the system of international credits must be reconstructed to escape collapse in the world's economic system.

He echoed the Wiggan recommendation that the governments were faced with "imperative need of action—not within a period of years, but of months, perhaps weeks."

NO WAR THREAT

There was in existence an atmosphere of unrest and suspicion, he said, but political conditions were not altogether bad. "There is not the slightest prospect, I believe, of war," he continued. "There never was a time when war seemed less probable."

But the prevailing political customs might lead to serious international consequences, Lord Cecil added. He deplored the inflammatory speeches of a demagogic nature, saying: "One inflammatory speech cannot be cured by ten moderate speeches from the same source."

MILKY WAY OLDEST TRUST

By DAVID DIETZ

The world's oldest trust is being studied by astronomers.

Contrary to general belief, the trust and merger of modern business was not invented by John D. Rockefeller and the Standard Oil.

According to astronomers, the Milky Way galaxy is the oldest trust in the universe and it has been practicing merger tactics for a period of years estimated conservatively as a couple of million times a trillion.

The galaxy, according to present theories, has been growing larger and larger by absorbing and merging with itself smaller collections of stars.

One is that our galaxy is the largest thing in the known universe. The other is the structure of our galaxy. Our sun is one of forty billion stars forming our galaxy. The characteristic appearance of the night sky with the Milky Way running across it is due to the shape of our galaxy.

The stars are distributed in a great disk like a wheel or a great watch. We see so many stars in the Milky Way because when we look in its direction, we are looking along the long diameter of the galaxy, along the hands of the watch. When we look away from the Milky Way, we are looking out through the face of the watch.

Recent researches have disclosed that scattered about the great ocean of space which we call the universe are other galaxies or collections of stars. These other galaxies are known generally as the spiral nebulae because of their spiral shape.

But none of these other spirals are as large as our own galaxy. The nearest one, and the one about which we know the most as a result, is the great nebula in the constellation of Andromeda. This is only about one-seventh the size of our galaxy.

None of the spirals seem to exceed one-third of our own in size. Astronomers feel that there must be some special reason for the unique size of our own galaxy.

Tuping next to the distribution of stars in the galaxy, astronomers have noticed a number of interesting facts in recent years.

form speed. Their motion is not unlike that of a flock of birds.

It is these clusters which astronomers believe have been merged to our galaxy, making it the foremost "trust" of the universe.

Newton's law of gravitation states that every object in the universe attracts every other object.

This, astronomers believe, accounts for the merger tactics of our galaxy. The globular clusters have been attached to the edge of the galaxy. The open clusters, it is thought, were attached at an earlier date.

As a result, it is thought that they have been pulled within the galaxy, where the complex play of gravitational force has destroyed the original globular formation of the clusters.

RAIL BUILDING IN NEW ZEALAND MAY BE ENDED

Canadian Press Cable Via Reuter's

Wellington, N.Z., Sept. 11.—The New Zealand Government railway board has recommended stoppage of all work under construction, an action which would result in a saving of $30,000,000.

The board declares completion of contemplated lines is not justified in view of the heavy annual losses the government railway system is sustaining.

Whether this step will be taken in the face of the unemployment problem is doubtful.

It isn't only in New Brunswick that you find people who praise Minard's Liniment. Mr. George Dowd, Glenboro, Man., writes: "I have found your Minard's Liniment especially good for barbed wire cuts on horses."

And from Lardo, B.C., Mrs. Thos. Bulmer wrote: "Last winter I had a cow get a very large lump in her udder. I rubbed it with Minard's Liniment and it soon got better."

Minard's "King of Pain" Liniment is just as good for men and women as for animals . . . the "pet" remedy of a family doctor, 50 years in use. As reliable for Coughs, Colds and Stomach Pains as for Rheumatism or Sore Muscles. As fine for Burns as Corns. Reliable, Inexpensive. You should always have a bottle of Minard's around the place.
